—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

PHILIP SNOWDEN, fighting Chancellor of the British Exchequer, possesses qualities that England needs.

"Come the world against us, England yet shall stand."

That is Snowden's challenge as he announced taxes enormously increased, a slash in the dole, in the pay of teachers, army, navy and police, higher taxes on beer, gasoline, tobacco.

Those that dance must pay the piper. It was expensive dancing for this world during that big war.

Even we, who didn't start the dancing or hire the band, must pay our part of the bill.

SENATOR REED, of Pennsylvania, high on the Republican financial committee, demands a sales tax to produce $2,000,000,000 annual revenue. He is opposed by merchants and some of the little people who realize that it would make them contribute to the expense of government without realizing it.

Apparently, however, a sales tax is coming. The government must meet its expenses one way or another.

WHO LAUGHS last, laughs best. Belgium had a sad time when the war started. You remember about "not more than one lump of sugar, one small pat of butter, etc., for Belgium's sake."

Now Belgium finds herself prosperous in the middle of the world's slump, her bonds above par, with a high "gold coverage" of 66 per cent of her notes. Her antiquated industrial plants that were destroyed by Germans have been replaced, at Germany's expense, with new modern plants of greater capacity.

The head of the Belgian National Bank, Paul Van Zealand, considers Belgium's economic status "the most secure in all Europe."

NEW YORK CITY, in spite of alleged extravagance, is still rich, with good credit. Last year it spent more than $600,000,000, $100,000,000 more than it cost to run our national government before the big war. Today it is able to borrow $20,000,000 at 1.45 per cent interest.

This loan, for three months, reflects partly New York's extraordinarily good credit and more emphatically the present "extraordinary ease" in money.

PRESIDENT HOOVER and Secretary Mellon borrow $800,000,000 to help out in this emergency, the loan repayable in 20 years, sound financing, at low interest.

Gov. Roosevelt, who has already started the 1932 campaign, objects to the 20-year loan as unfair to the future.

It would be still more unfair to the future to let this country go to the bow-wows just now. And it was unfair to the present, when this country was forced on behalf of the future to spend tens of billions in a war that it did not start.

WE HAVE ALL been told ten thousand times that government should not go into any business, and that this government can't run any business efficiently or honestly. The Canadian National Railroad Company, owned by the people of Canada, surprises you with two facts.

In Canada, railroad public ownership succeeded where private ownership had failed. And the National Canadian Railway is able to borrow money now at 4½ per cent on 20-year bonds. How many privately-owned American railways could do that just now?

NEW YORK has a Sullivan law, making it unlawful for law-abiding citizens to own pistols. All gangsters and other criminals have their pistols and use them to shoot the citizens. The criminal's work is made easier by his knowledge that when he "pulls a gat" on a crowd it is a crowd unarmed.

A bill, suggested, now would prevent "sale or possession" of a machine gun, favorite weapon in racketeering circles. That law would do away with the constitutional provision concerning the right of citizens to bear arms. But it would not interfere with gangster possession of machine guns. They have theirs already.

It is a fallacious idea that by passing another law you can discourage whisky or gangsters.

JOINING THE LEAGUE, Mexico couples with her acceptance the statement that she has never admitted the validity of the Monroe Doctrine.

Our Mexican friends might be glad to admit that validity in case of serious attack from Europe or Asia. If President Rubio and his government would read a brief essay on the Monroe Doctrine by Sir Frederick Pollock, greatest British authority on international law, Mexico might take a different view of the League.

VOTE MACHINES SENT TO POLLS

As the first truck load of voting machines moved out from the new County Building today for delivery in Clairton, Gilbert C. Cloonan, of the Bureau of Elections, announced 269 machines had been received. Two more are due today. There will be enough to serve the 55 districts in the three third-class cities, Clairton, Duquesne and McKeesport, and the 39 districts in the first four wards of Pittsburgh, with three machines to the district. It is planned to retain 40 or 50 machines in reserve.

Awning Fire Alarms Naval Headquarters

WASHINGTON, Sept. 11.—(AP.)—Fire alarm gongs clanged through the Navy Building today. A dozen building guards rushed to the scene, each carring a fire extinguisher. They arrived just in time to see Edward A. Arnold, of the Naval Communications Department, put out the fire with a vace of water. A cigaret had burned 16 inches of awning.

Explosion Levels Apartment House

CLEVELAND, Sept. 11.—(AP.)—An explosion believed caused by escaping gas levelled an unoccupied four-suite East Side apartment house early today. Flames ignited apartment houses on either side, and occupants gained safety only after several dramatic rescues. Beyond bruises none was injured. Fire Warden Patrick Ferrie said he believed the explosion incendiary.

Two Meteors Seen In Wisconsin Towns

MILWAUKEE, Sept. 11.—(AP.)—Residents of two widely separated communities of Wisconsin observed falling meteors last night. One, described "as big as a house," was reported by residents near the north shore of Lake Winnebago to fall into the lake with a loud splash.

TRAFFIC JAM AT AIRPORT OPENING

Roads Blocked for Miles as Throngs Gather; Plane Hits Surgeon's Car in Landing

With only a slight mishap and a traffic jam to mar the festivities, thousands assembled for the dedication of the City-County Airport in Mifflin Township today.

An airplane in landing crashed into a city automobile and a motorcycle on the field, slightly injuring two physicians and a nurse detailed for first aid duty.

At the same time an unprecedented traffic jam blocked all roads leading toward the airport for a radius of five to seven miles. The Clairton road was choked with automobiles as far as Brentwood. Police reported that other highways leading to the Lebanon Church road, by which the airport is reached, were blocked.

PLANE IN SMASH

A two-seater Argo biplane, piloted by the owner, W. B. Pelon, of New Cumberland, W. Va., with V. S. Jackson, of Weirton, W. Va., as a passenger, glided onto the hard-surfaced airport at high speed.

Polen was unable to control the ship and it ground looped, smashing into the automobile and motorcycle, damaging both and wrecking the plane's propeller.

Occupants of the auto, Dr. W. S. Nettrour, Dr. Thomas Clark and a Mercy Hospital nurse, were badly shaken up and bruised, but remained on duty. The car had been assigned to Dr. D. E. Sable, police and fire surgeon. The motorcycle was operated by Patrolman Eugene Jantz. The two vehicles were parked at the north end of the field with other emergency cars and fire apparatus.

STORM, TIDAL WAVE KILLS HUNDREDS

U. S. Priests Victims in Wrecked Honduras Town; Vast Damage in Islands

International News Service.

Two tropical storms of hurricane intensity were sweeping widely separated areas in the Caribbean today after killing probably 200 persons in Belize, British Honduras, and causing considerable damage in Porto Rico.

It was feared that both storms might do more damage and cause even greater loss of life, especially the one which struck Porto Rico.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 11.—(INS.)—Several Americans are believed to have been killed in the hurricane and tidal wave which struck Belize, British Honduras, last night, according to a message to the State Department today. American Consul Taggart was injured. The Americans killed are believed to have been priests.

CASUALTIES UNKNOWNN

The full extent of the casualties has not been ascertained, but they may run into the hundreds. The message said:

"Belize devastated by severe hurrican and tidal wave yesterday afternoon and evening. Authorities advise that casualties not ascertained, but should run into hundreds. Few buildings intact. Relief of all kinds urgently needed. Please advise any action proposed by American organizations. Several American priests killed, but definite information about dead and injured not available. Consulate staff safe, except slight injuries to Consul Taggart."

FORGERIES RESULT IN CHECK-UP

Subordinate Assessor Tells Of Adding 922 Names to Books at Chief's Order

Howard Neely, Republican chairman of the Fourth Ward and follower of State Senator James J. Coyne in his candidacy for County Commissioner, was summoned before the Registration Commission and members of the Allegheny County Bar Association's Committee on Election Frauds late today.

Neely was called after investigators yesterday discovered nine evidences of forgery in the first 150 of 833 orders for tax receipts submitted by Neely to the Delinquent Tax Office. One of the signatures on an order was the name of a man, who, his widow said when interviewed at the address given on the order, had been dead 18 years.

Closeted with the Fourth Ward chairman were E. Lowry Humes, of the Registration Commission; Peter Conners, its chief investigator, and Joseph A. Richardson and Earl F. Reed, of the Bar Association committee.

As members of the Registration Commission worked desperately against time today in an effort to purge Tuesday's voting lists of thousands of names they believe to be fraudulently assessed or registered, the following developments were recorded:

1—Howard Neely, Fourth Ward Republican chairman and supporter of State Senator Coyne, was called before the Registration Commission and Bar Association representatives late today after investigators yesterday discovered nine evidences of forgery in orders for tax receipts submitted by him to the Delinquent Tax office.

2—Registration Commission investigators started a check on 35,000 names for which tax receipts have been issued from the County Treasurer's office, most of them on "wholesale" orders.

4—Frank Alpert, a subordinate assessor, told investigators he added 922 names, later struck off by Judge Gray as illegal, to the Board for Revision and Assessment of Taxes additional assessment books, at the order of the "chief assessor."

5—Members of the Allegheny County Bar Association's Committee on Election Frauds conferred with the Registration Commission as to possible court action against "phantom voting."

6—Indication, through tabulation of Tuesday's registration, that this year's vote, swollen by thousands upon thousands of fraudulent assessments and reg-

CITY SWELTERS, ONE DEAD

As temperatures hovered around 90 today one death from heat prostration was reported. George Stone, 65, of 52 Park avenue, West View, who died in Allegheny General Hospital, was the victim. He collapsed at Ohio and Sandusky street late yesterday.

Continued warm weather tomorrow was forecast. The previous high mark for this date was 97 made in 1900.

Chorus Man Slain, Police Seek Friend

NORWALK, Conn., Sept. 11.—(AP.)—Theodore Humbert, 23, of Brooklyn, a Broadway chorus man and interior decorator, was found beaten to death yesterday in a cottage on Lovers' Lane in Bell Island section of Norwalk.

Police began a search for Charles Chapman, 25, of New York, also an interior decorator, who had occupied the cottage.

Hurt in Auto Crash In Airport Traffic

Elizabeth Craft, 30, of 1615 Middle street, Sharpsburg, was taken to Homestead Hospital shortly after noon today suffering from cuts and bruises incurred when her car collided with another en route to the County Airport dedication.

Wheat Pact Awaits German Signatures

WASHINGTON, Sept. 11.—(AP.)—The negotiations between the Farm Board and the German government for a sale of a quantity of American wheat to Germany on long-term credits are about to reach a successful conclusion.

The amount of grain involved and exact terms of the credit have not been divulged. Preparations are set at the board, however, for the German representatives to sign the agreement without delay. Then the terms are expected to be made public.

Cold Cured, Walker Resumes Activities

CANNES, France, Sept. 11.—(INS.)—Mayor James J. Walker, of New York, who has been suffering from a severe cold, was expected to resume his activities today.

The Mayor is due to leave Cannes tomorrow for London, where he will lunch with Prime Minister J. Ramsay MacDonald and keep a number of other engagements before sailing for home on the Bremen next Wednesday.

RACKETS FEEL KLINE'S WHIP

Racketeers of the Penn avenue district say that yesterday they were herded into the Penn Avenue Police Station and given instructions for next Tuesday's primaries.

They say they were told to support Mayor Charles H. Kline's candidates, James J. Coyne for County Commissioner, and Edward Ackerman, candidate for constable in the Sixth Ward, or cease operating. Capt. John Schnurr is the acting inspector of the district.

Notified to appear at the police station at a certain hour, the men were taken one by one to the second floor and ushered into the presence of a police official and political leader of the district, some of the men reported.

The police officer is quoted as saying:

"Run wide open. Remember, I can get you any time I want you. All I ask is that you support Coyne and Ackerman. We won't raid you because we want you to be with us."

The political leader was quoted as telling a man who had previously been in trouble:

"Don't forget we got you out of trouble. They (meaning the opposition) can't do anything for you."

Woman Endurance Swimmer Missing

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 11.—(AP.)—Police today were searching for Mrs. Lee Fourrier, 37, who disappeared Wednesday from the Hollywood Beach Club, where she was recuperating from an unsuccessful effort to set a new endurance swimming mark.

Her mother, Mrs. Viola Young, told authorities her daughter was despondent over her failure to exceed the 100 hour record. Mrs. Fourrier in private life is the wife of George Fields.

Shows How Pirates Hurled Rich Mate Into Water

MINEOLA, L. I., Sept. 11.—(AP.)—Word that a boat containing clothing had been found adrift about two miles from Lloyd's Point was received shortly after noon today by officers investigating the disappearance of Benjamin P. Collings from his cabin cruiser Penguin late Wednesday night.

Two detectives went to look the boat over. The information here did not state what kind of boat it was, nor whether the clothing was a man's or a woman's.

SECOND BOAT FOUND

The information came from Carl Christman, of New York City, who is summering at Eaton's Neck, a short distance from Lloyd's Point, near where the Penguin was found Wednesday night with only Collings' small daughter Barbara abroad.

Still another craft, the yacht "Oh Boy," was found drifting in Hell Gate, where the sound opens into the East River, but investi-

U. S. Declines to Act In Chinese Dispute

WASHINGTON, Sept. 11.—(AP.)—State department officials said today the American government had informed the Chinese legation that this country does not believe its good offices are necessary in the Chinese-Mexican expulsion dispute.

Lionel Barrymore's Wife in Hospital

PASADENA, Cal., Sept. 11.—(AP.)—Mrs. Lionel Barrymore, wife of the actor, was under treatment at a hospital here yesterday. Her husband said she was underweight and needed rest. She is the former Irene Fenwick, stage actress.

2 DIE IN KODAK PLANT BLAST

ROCHESTER, Sept. 11.—(AP.)—An explosion shortly after 11 a. m. today ripped out the west wall of the four-story roll-coating building in the center of the Kodak Park plant of the Eastman Kodak Company, killing two workmen and injuring 14 others, six of them possibly fatally.

Eight hundred workers in the building were saved from panic by cool headed leadership and marched to safety.

Four city ambulances made several trips to the plant on the outskirts of the city. The injured were reported in critical condition from acid burns and falling stonework. The plant hospital cared for a large number of less seriously injured.

The explosion was believed to have occurred in a machine shop shed used for mixing the highly explosive coating, which was applied in the building to roll film. The shock of the blast was felt over a wide radius and police departments were deluged with calls.

Captain Asks Martial Law To Curb Church Row

JONESBORO, Ark., Sept. 11.—(AP.)—Lieut. James A. Puckett, second in command of 75 National Guardsmen here to assist civil authorities in case of further disorders growing out of a factional controversy in the First Baptist Church, said today his superior officer, Capt. Harry Eldridge, had telephoned Gov. Parnell at Little Rock today, saying:

"The situation can not be solved under present measures. Martial law must be declared."

Lieut. Puckett commented:

"The guardsmen cannot do anything about the revival meetings here. We feel the meetings must be stopped before the trouble is ended."

The reference was to a revival Rev. Joe Jeffers, a Baptist evangelist, is holding in a tent here.

The church controversy started after Jeffers publicly attacked the character of Dr. D. H. Heard, pastor of the First Baptist Church, and started a movement to oust him.

Maj. H. J. Bosler, who with the city council and Sheriff W. R. Nash late yesterday asked the Governor to declare martial law, said today that although everything appeared tranquil on the surface:

"We haven't started to have trouble yet. It is at night when the meetings are held that the situation becomes tense."

Sir Oliver Lodge Promises Message From 'Beyond'

OXFORD, England, Sept. 11.—(AP.)—Sir Oliver Lodge revealed today that he expects to speak from beyond the grave to those who were his friends on earth and that he already has made arrangements for such a communication. He said at the Modern Churchmen's conference:

"I shall try to establish my identity by detailing a perfectly preposterous and absurdly childish peculiarity. I already have taken the trouble to record it with some care in a sealed document which I have deposited with the English Society for Physical Research. I hope to remember the details of this document and to relate them in unmistakable fashion."

The value of such a communication, he explained, would be only as "additional proof of the survival of personal identity."

CONGRESS FACES 3-CORNERED FIGHT OVER TAX REVISION

INDEPENDENTS SCORE REED PROPOSAL

Want Higher Rates on Big Incomes; Democrats for Delay in Levy Increase

WASHINGTON, Sept. 11.—(AP)—A variety of views advocated by congressional leaders on how to balance next year's federal budget today were before President Hoover.

Two administration Republican pilots in fiscal affairs sounded the call yesterday for tax revision. They propose, however, do not coincide, or follow the program of Republican Independents who are sponsors of tax increases. Both declarations were believed to forecast the trend of the administration.

Representative Bacharach, of New Jersey, second ranking Republican on the House Ways and Means Committee, who initiates revenue raising legislation, advocated increases in taxes on estates and on incomes in excess of $100,000, restoration of the gift tax and the imposition of a sales tax on "luxuries and nonessentials."

REED'S PLAN

Senator Reed, of Pennsylvania, who has waged past legislative campaigns for Secretary Mellon's programs, came forward with a plan for a sales tax of one half of 1 per cent on all commodities sold to the public.

Meanwhile, other staunch Republicans, including Senator Watson, of Indiana, the party leader, have asked the administration to resort to new loans next year to await a return to normal conditions before revising the tax system.

Senator Watson said today after talking with President Hoover that he thought any tax increase or taxation revision at the next session of Congress would be a great mistake.

DEMOCRATIC STAND

Democratic leaders who have spoken on the subject oppose an increase next session. They are advocating instead that the government pare down the money spent annually in retiring the public debt.

Just now it looks like a three-cornered fight. If the Democrats oppose tax revision unitedly they could almost block it with the aid of the Republican Independents and Republican regulars divided on how to accomplish the revision.

STUDENTS RIOT ON OUSTING OF TEACHERS

By M. V. BURGESS
Staff Correspondent

MORGANTOWN, W. Va., Sept. 11.—Fists flew and banners were trampled as two factions among the high school students clashed here last night during a demonstration for Principal J. T. West, Miss Blanche Garfield and Miss Esther Williams, teachers, who have been placed on leaves of absence by the Board of Education.

Action against the three faculty members was taken by the board after complaints against their conduct had been made by three janitors. The nature of the complaint has ben kept a strict secret by the board.

Large numbers of high school students showed their confidence in the innocence of the teachers by gathering at the high school building last night and cheering them. A parade through the business district was interrupted frequently by a small group of students intent on breaking it up.

Fist fights were started. The crowd squared off in one spot and roared its approval while two school boys, one with red hair, put on a battle which was stopped by police. Several banners were carried by both factions and were torn up in the melee. One read, "West for school spirit," and another "We don't want West."

A petition prepared by students and alumni of the high school asking the Board of Education for the immediate reinstatement of the three teachers already has hundreds of signers. It was being circulated last night by high school boys in the crowds.

Dr. C. E. McCotale, superintendent of schools, has filed his resignation with the Board of Education to take effect October 1.

R-100 DOOMED BY BRITAIN'S ECONOMY

By OTTO D. TOLISCHUS
International News Service

LONDON, Sept. 11.—Still stunned by the government's drastic taxation and economy measures, Britain dug into its pocket and prepared to pay two cents more for its "pint o' bitter" today as Prime Minister J. Ramsay MacDonald went before Parliament to demand dictatorial powers to carry out his program of "equal sacrifices."

As debate began in Commons today on the economy measures, Premier MacDonald defended procedure by orders in council as essential to meet the financial crisis.

The R-100, giant British dirigible which flew to Canada and back again last year, will be "disposed of" in the interests of economy, MacDonald told the House. His announcement was made in outlining projected cuts in the air service.

CLOSE AIRSHIP STATION

The R-100, sister ship of the tragic R-101, will be disposed of to help effect a saving of $22,500,000 in the national defense program. The Cardington airship station will be placed on a basis of "care and maintenance." Masts and other paraphernalia which have been built in various parts of the world to facilitate airship flights will be reduced to the same status. A staff will be maintained only to watch over the properties.

Criticism notwithstanding, indications were MacDonald would emerge victorious. Orders in council procedure would enable the government to enact financial reforms by cabinet decree.

Fenner Brockway, chairman of the radical Independent Labor party, said the economy bill was the first bill in a "revolutionary situation" and indicated Great Britain has a similar kind of dictatorship to that existing in many European countries.

At Bristol the Trades Union Congress passed a resolution calling upon Parliament to bring the iron and steel industry of Great Britain within the control of a public utilities corporation.

BOAT MYSTERY DEEPENED

gators decided this had no connection with the Collings case.

RE-ENACTS TRAGEDY

OYSTER BAY, N. Y., Sept. 11.—(AP)—Mrs. Benjamin P. Collings today re-enacted on board the yacht Penguin the tragedy in which she said her husband was thrown overboard and probably drowned late Wednesday night by two gunmen who later attacked and marooned her.

Before the arrival of the officers with Mrs. Collings, Charles Prussell, Nassau County finger-print expert, made more than 100 photographs of fingerprints found on the yacht. Mrs. Collings was to be fingerprinted later.

The re-enactment on the Penguin took about two hours and then Mrs. Collings was driven back to Mineola for further examination by the District Attorney.

Inspector King revealed before leaving that he had found on the Penguin a .32 caliber automatic pistol with empty chambers and a hunting knife. No cartridges were found with the gun and it apparently had not been used recently but it was taken to Mineola with the knife for examination by finger-print experts.

Re-enacting the tragedy, Mrs. Collings said two men had boarded the cruiser while she was in the cabin. She heard voices and something about a request that her husband take an injured man to a hospital in West Norwalk, Conn.

Her husband answered he could not run without lights. Later she heard a scuffle and a splash. She said she was unable to run out of her cabin, for it had been locked from the outside.

STORY INCOHERENT

Later it was unlocked and she ran upstairs and threw a rubber mattress into the sound, hoping her husband would find it and keep afloat.

She said the men then put her into the canoe and took her across the sound to Oyster bay.

Inspector Harold King, of Nassau police, said her story was incoherent in spots, but this was mainly due to hysteria and fright.

The Penguin, blood stained and showing signs of a struggle, was towed to Syosset, where police carefully examined it and ripped out its boardwork in a search for clues. Mrs. Collings' diary and a broken oar were found.

HEARST TO GIVE RADIO TALK ON EUROPE

Will Tell of Conditions Found On Tour in International Broadcast Tomorrow Night

NEW YORK, Sept. 11.—William Randolph Hearst will broadcast an eye-witness report of conditions in Europe as they effect the United States over a coast to coast network of the National Broadcasting Company tomorrow evening, beginning at 8:30 daylight saving time.

Mr. Hearst returned from Europe yesterday.

He will make the broadcast at the personal invitation of Merlin H. Aylesworth, president of the National Broadcasting Company. Mr. Aylesworth extended the invitation by radio while Mr. Hearst was in mid-ocean.

TO BE HEARD ABROAD

Mr. Hearst expects to speak for about 20 minutes. He will face the microphones of station WEAF in the New York studios of NBC and his address will be carried over the Red and associated stations throughout the country. It will be his fourth appearance as a speaker on a nation-wide radio hookup.

Because of the world-wide interest that has accompanied his broadcasts and utterances on previous occasions, National Broadcasting Company has arranged for his speech to be transmitted to foreign countries through short wave stations in Schenectady, Pittsburgh and Oakland.

DOLE DEMORALIZING

Mr. Hearst on his arrival here declared the dole the most demoralizing measure of unemployment relief.

He had sailed for Europe immediately after announcing over the radio his plan of restoring prosperity by the floating of a $5,000,000,000 loan, destined to give work to the unemployed by the prosecution of public works.

Asked yesterday if he had any other plan in mind, he answered:

"I think that is enough. We should go ahead on that plan and concentrate on it."

England, Mr. Hearst declared, does not realize its acute crisis nor possess the courage to take the drastic and necessary measures. He continued:

"You can see that in the handling of the dole situation. I believe the dole is the most demoralizing thing possible. The principal reason back of my proposal was to get away from it. Under the plan, money will be expended for work and not for idling."

FINDS CONDITIONS BAD

Asked his opinion of the recent collapse of the Labor government and the formation of a Coalition cabinet, he said:

"I certainly think Mr. MacDonald did the wise thing. It was the best way to avert a smash."

Mr. Hearst found conditions bad in Germany, but no worse than in England. In fact, he added Germany has a better conception of how to handle her problems than England.

Besides Germany and England, Mr. Hearst and party visited Italy, Switzerland, Belgium and the Austrian Tyrol. He spent much time in the primitive atmosphere of his castle of St. Donat's in the Vale of Glamorgan, Wales.

TAX FORGERIES UNCOVERED

istration would reach a record total of more than 200,000.

Two other signatures said by the persons they represent to be forgeries were discovered among the first 50 tax receipt orders submitted to the Delinquent Tax Collectors office by James E. Routley, assistant chief clerk in the County Commissioners office, investigators revealed today.

They were among the 526 orders obtained by Routley in the Seventeenth Ward, home of his employer, County Commissioner Joseph G. Armstrong.

The persons for whom the receipts were supposed to have been obtained were:

MRS. GERTRUDE DAILEY, 1711 Sidney street. She said:

"I did not authorize anyone to get me a tax receipt and I have not received one. My husband is out of work and I have three children, who keep me so busy I have no time for politics."

MRS. ANNA V. DERRICK, 1812 Wharton street. Mrs. Derrick's name is now O'Malley, as she remarried a year ago this month. She said:

"I haven't received a tax receipt and I didn't authorize anybody to get one for me. I haven't voted for three years."

FEAR WHOLESALE FRAUD

These discoveries on top of those found yesterday in Neely's list, strengthen the belief of Registration Commissioners that wholesale fraud is to be attempted in Tuesday's election.

Registration Commission investigators took the lists of 35,000 names for which tax receipts were issued on orders from the County Treasurer's office today and started a check on those which were obtained in wholesale lots.

These they said comprised the greater part of the 35,000.

They pointed out that the 35,000 names coupled with 20,000 for which wholesale receipts were issued on order in the Delinquent Tax office from more than one-fourth of the 200,000 votes expected to be cast Tuesday.

Registration Commissioner investigators today continued probing into Routley's and Neely's lists as well as those of 50 or more other politicians who obtained the tax receipt orders in wholesale lots.

Gen. Churchill B. Mehard, counsel for the Registration Commission, was to confer with members of the board today as to what action should be taken in the forgeries.

The most blatant case yet discovered by the investigators was in Neely's list, where M. Ciberey was represented as signing a tax receipt order. The address given was 18 Bates street. Going there, investigators found that Ciberey's widow and daughter lived there. The husband and father, supposed to have signed the order, having been dead for 18 years.

TOO HIGH

Five men were found to have been regulated from the seventeenth floor of the Fort Pitt Hotel, which is only 11 stories high.

Mrs. E. Lowry Humes, secretary of the Registration Commission, and Peter J. Connors, its chief investigator, yesterday heard from Frank Alpert, a subordinate tax assessor, how Paul Walsh, a candidate for Constable of the First Ward, and son of Supt. of Police Peter Walsh, had 922 names placed on the additional assessment books of his ward without the formality of affidavits.

ment records. Most of them live in Belize.

The Navy Department deployed its operating forces to afford relief to the stricken city of Belize under White House orders at noon.

PLANES RUSH TO AID

Airplanes were ordered from the Canal Zone to Belize carrying medical and food supplies, and likewise Marine planes from Nicaragua.

For communication purposes and relief the mine sweeper Swan now at Trujillo, Honduras, was ordered to the stricken zone. The department had under consideration sending one of the ships of the Navy's special service squadron to Belize.

Officials said the Marine planes from Nicaragua would arrive at Belize within several hours, those from the Canal Zone within eight. The mine sweeper Swan will be able to steam to Belize in five or six hours.

SAN JUAN HARD HIT

SAN JUAN, Porto Rico, Sept. 11.—(INS)—San Juan and vicinity today was taking stock of the damage caused by one of the most severe hurricanes which has struck the island of Porto Rico since the disastrous blow of 1928.

Sweeping out of the Caribbean Sea like some giant monster of the sea, the hurricane struck San Juan a staggering blow, as the center of the storm, with a wind estimated at 100 miles per hour velocity, shattered weak buildings, sent roofs slithering across the city and strewed the streets with wreckage.

The storm struck the city shortly before 10 p. m. last night and lasted for about two hours.

The city's electric light system was put out of commission. Telegraph and telephone poles and lines were blown down. Power lines were snapped off and all trolley cars in the city came to a standstill. The streets were full of debris when the residents ventured out after the storm had passed.

Heavy damage to the island's fruit crop in the northeastern section was feared.

A. Allen, who are missing. First reports did not state whether he was injured. Yoshihara was turned back by fog. He was flying the old Europa, in which Baron Huenfeld, German aviator, and his companions had attempted a round-the-world flight.

REGISTRATION UP TO 135,065

Total number of voters registered in Pittsburgh during the first two registration days was 135,065, Registration Commission officials revealed today.

Of these 66,061 registered on September 3 and 69,004 last Thursday.

John K. Morrow, chairman of the commission, said these figures substantiated the general belief that this fall's vote would be the heaviest in many years. It has been frequently estimated by politicians that the city vote will be over 200,000.

In previous years the final registration day in this case tomorrow, always has seen a much heavier enrollment than on the first two. Should the registration run true to form tomorrow, the total will easily pass the 200,000 mark.

Registration places will be open from 8 to 11 a. m. and from 5 to 11 p. m., daylight saving time.

Gifts and Frills Lacking At Vanderbilt Wedding

MANHASSET, N. Y., Sept. 11.—(AP)—Society was much interested today in a golden gate wedding without gifts, bridesmaids or ushers.

Mrs. Muriel Vanderbilt Church, heiress, who was married to her first husband by an Episcopal minister and a Catholic priest, selected a judge to make her Mrs. Henry Delafield Phelps this afternoon.

The bride decided to be the only woman in the immediate wedding party, her brother, William K. Vanderbilt, Jr., escorting her, and Phelps having his father, Edgar M. Phelps, for best man.

Close relatives and a few friends were invited. Friends were asked to give to unemployment relief funds that they intended to spend on gifts. Louis J. Fawcett, justice of the State Supreme Court, was to perform the ceremony at the country estate of the bride's mother, Mrs. Graham Fair Vanderbilt.

The bride's father, W. K. Vanderbilt, is another guest in the South Seas with his second wife, the former Rosamond Lancaster Warburton.

Phelps is a Pittsburgher, head salesman whose home is in Middletown, R. I. He and Mrs. Phelps will live on the bride's Newport estate, where she has spent much of her time developing blue ribbon winners at horse shows.

Criminal Held Cured By Brain Operation

MASSILLON, O., Sept. 11.—(INS)—Elimination of alleged criminal tendencies of Howard Buck, 30, of Akron, through a delicate operation on the brain was believed accomplished here today by surgeons at the Massillon State Hospital, where the operation was performed.

Declaring that the operation was a success, surgeons stated that Buck, who was said to have become an unwilling addict of crime as a result of a head injury suffered in a football game in 1922 while playing at the University of Chicago, was rapidly recovering.

Buck, twice arrested on forgery charges, the last time in Barberton, requested the operation, hospital attaches said, after an examination conducted by Prosecutor Don Isham, of Summit County, showed that the brain had become irritated from the skull fracture received in the football game.

The operation revealed, according to surgeons, that an abcess had formed close to the covering of the brain and that a bone extended down into the brain, causing a pressure.

The patient, who told Prosecutor Isham that he also suffered an occasional lapse of memory during which time his alleged criminal acts were committed, had no tendency to violate laws before the head injury was suffered, officials said.

VICTIM'S CASH PAID POWERS

By DAVID P. SENTNER
International News Service Staff

CLARKSBURG, W. Va., Sept. 11.—Harry Powers, West Virginia Bluebeard, today was identified as the "A. R. Weaver" who cashed two checks at Uniontown, Pa., for the account of Mrs. Dorothy Lemke, his fifth murder victim.

"Weaver" was identified through a picture as Powers. As Mrs. Lemke was en route from her sister's home in Northboro, Mass., with Powers, checks for $2,754.22 and $1,533.01 were drawn on the account of the Massachusetts widow in Uniontown.

"Weaver" left the checks at a bank on August 1 for collection. He returned August 10 and received the money.

Attorneys for the heirs to the estate of Mrs. Lemke have started suit here for the recovery of this money, and charge that Powers also obtained jewelry and securities worth $15,000 from the widow.

Concerning reports that Powers was aided by an accomplice, City Detective Carl Southern, returning from Pittsburgh on a false clue today expressed his belief that Powers operated "as a lone wolf."

100 PLANES IN AIR

More than 100 planes were in the air as time for opening of the events drew near.

ARMY PLANES ARRIVE

Six Army observation planes from Mitchell Field, Long Island, arrived at 10:30 a. m., circled over the field in battle formation with Lieut. Fabach in command, and glided onto the concrete paved port amid cheers of thousands.

Speechmaking ceremonies scheduled from 3 to 4 p. m. were to be broadcast over KDKA.

Shortly before noon a Ford trimotor plane took up an inspection party. In the group were County Commissioner E. V. Babcock and his son, F. C. Babcock, Robert A. Foley, W. U. Christman, Jack Niedringhaus, E. F. Moriarity, Mrs. H. C. Fry, Mrs. C. W. Davis and Mrs. E. B. Whisler.

A few of the visiting airmen, including a squadron from the Great Lakes Naval Training Station, flew into the county airport late yesterday. They were greeted by federal and state inspectors and the port manager, C. W. Forcier, who has had complete charge of arrangements for the gala opening and who has promised an aerial show the like of which never before has been seen here. More than 150 planes are to participate in the day's activities, according to Forcier.

EVENTS AND SPEAKERS

The racing events are being run under rules approved by the National Aeronautical Association around a triangular course marked by three pylons connected with the judges' stand by telephone. This system of checking the progress of race contestants enables radio announcers on the ground to keep spectators informed up to the minute.

Speakers during the afternoon festivities were to include County Commissioners Joseph G. Armstrong, E. V. Babcock and Charles C. McGovern; James Francis Burke, United States Senator James J. Davis, Mayor Charles H. Kline, A. E. Braun and Public Works Director Norman S. Brown. Burke was to make the formal address of dedication.

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 11.—(AP)—Rose Marie Redwing, Indian film actress, has filed a damage action for $58,000 against Charles A. Moncravie, wealthy Osage Indian, who already faced a $150,000 alienation suit brought by the actress' husband, Robert Redwing.

The actress asserted she was disfigured by injuries received in a motor accident with Moncravie. Redwing a year ago obtained a $25,000 judgment against Moncravie in the Long Beach courts as the results of the same accident.

FIRST LANDINGS AT AIRPORT

Mrs. E. R. Scroggie, of Pittsburgh, wife of the federal inspector of airports here, was the first woman officially to land at the new City-County airport for today's celebration. She was accompanied by her husband.

Among the early arrivals by air was Laurin C. Faurot, state inspector of airports, Western Division. After he circled and landed, he said:

"The new port is one of the most wonderful airports in the country."

RUSSIAN CARDS FLOUT CHURCH

MOSCOW.—The latest novelty sold in the stores of Moscow are anti-religious playing cards. No good church-going member or pious deacon would touch these cards with a long stick. To play poker or bridge with them would be a sacrilege in many countries.

The cards come done up in a neat package on which is a bright colored picture of a witch riding on her broom stick carrying away a crying child. It evidently symbolizes the strangle hold the Old Greek Orthodox Church had on the youth. The joker is another bit of fashionable propaganda here.

Britain Must Yield or Face Terrible Consequences, Gandhi Warns

MARSEILLES, France, Sept. 11.—(AP)—Mahatma Gandhi, setting foot on European soil for the first time in 15 years, told the Associated Press today that he believed the British government was faced with such staggering domestic problems that it was not likely to refuse India's demands for self government.

Refusal would mean the renewal of the civil disobedience campaign, he said, and the boycott of British goods on a scale greater than ever before. He promised that he would not take such a step until every possibility for arbitration had been exhausted. He said:

"If the fight should be renewed, which God forbid, the consequences will be infinitely more terrible than the last struggle. It will mean, I fear, that not only Indians would be shot down, but Britishers will be killed."

The French government's reception to India's holy man was most discreet, in that they consider him a colonial agitator, and every precaution was taken to ignore the round table delegates. Only two police officials, both local, were present and neither presented himself to Gandhi.

As Gandhi walked down the gangplank in his scant loin cloth with Miss Madeline Slade, his disciple, at his heels, his lack of attire was a revelation to the blase French people, who seemed to feel that even a saint should wear more clothing.

The appearance of India's mystical leader in her nonviolent fight for independence was made even more grotesque by a nondescript collection of pots, pans and a spinning wheel dangling at his side.

As Gandhi was ushered on to the special train to Paris by an English general sent by Prime Minister MacDonald, a British journalist asked him bluntly if he would not be ashamed to go about the streets of London and into the presence of King George in a loincloth. He replied:

"Well in England you wear plus fours while I prefer to wear minus fours."

Gandhi, who had insisted that he would travel from Marseilles only in a third-class railway carriage was compelled to ride first-class when he boarded the special boat train at 4 p. m. after the railway officials had refused to provide a third-class carriage on the train.

2 OHIO JUDGES ESCAPE OUSTER

YOUNGSTOWN, O., Sept. 11.—(AP)—A court of three out-of-town judges today refused to disbar Common Pleas Judges David G. Jenkins and J. H. C. Lyon but included in its decision a formal reprimand to the two jurists whose hearing on disbarment charges closed yesterday.

Attorney A. M. Henderson, also a defendant in the disbarment cases was given an "admonition."

Judge Jenkins, who several months ago enjoined the proposed merger of the Youngstown Sheet and Tube Company and the Bethlehem Steel Company, admitted charges that he accepted an ocean trip to New Orleans arranged by an agent for the Pennsylvania-Ohio Power Company.

He declared he acted in good faith and regarded the favors merely as acts of friendly assistance.

Judge Jenkins said he also had taken trips up the Great Lakes at the expense of the Youngstown Sheet and Tube Company.

THEFT CHARGED TO W. G. DREW

BRADFORD, Pa., Sept. 11.—(INS)—Rocking McKean County's political foundations, Bradford City Council today formally charged Webster G. Drew, city treasurer and 1930 senatorial candidate, with embezzlement, declared his office vacant and placed an armed police guard at his office.

The warrant charges Drew with embezzlement of school funds. Police reported the warrant had been mailed to the police chief of Wellsville, N. Y., north of the Pennsylvania-New York state line, where Drew is confined in a sanitarium.

Jewish New Year Begins At Sundown Today

With the blowing of the shofar, the ram's horn, at sundown today, Pittsburgh Jewry will begin the celebration of Rosh Hashanah, the New Year. The day will close with sundown tomorrow.

The event is one of pious and reverent devotion which ushers in a period of repentance lasting for 10 days. The period, which includes the Sabbath of Repentance, reaches its climax in the Day of Atonement, Yom Kippur.

Rosh Hashanah is the traditional day for the exchange of greetings and good wishes and for the pardoning of grievances between individuals. The synagogues are adorned in white, and the music and liturgy are adapted to the penitential themes of the day.

Horses, Not Planes, Draw Gen. Mitchell Here

Horses instead of airplanes occupied the attention of former Gen. William Mitchell, ex-chief of the United State Army Air Service, today upon his arrival here as the guest of R. K. Mellon and David I. McCahill, prominent in affairs of the Pittsburgh Horse Show.

With Lieut. Col. J. C. Butler, United States Cavalry Reserve, Mitchell motored from Rolling Rock, where they spent the night.

Asked whether he had deserted the winged steed for the four-legged animal, Mitchell answered:

"No—I'm interested in both."

"Do you think you'll get time to look over the new Pittsburgh-Allegheny County airport?"

"I'd like to very much—maybe I'll get time tomorrow."

"How about hopping over to the airport on a horse this afternoon?"

Thief Grabs $20 Bill From Hands Of Baby

Squirrel Hill police today were searching for a Negro who snatched a $20 bill from the hands of the 18-month-old son of Mrs. Goldie Nathan, of 6360 Monitor street, on the front porch of the Nathan home yesterday.

The baby, playing with the mother's purse, took out the bill. A Negro passing the house saw the child playing with the money and snatched it. His description was broadcast throughout the city.

East End Gang Beats Dry Agents

Eight Negroes attacked and beat two federal prohibition agents in Fletcher way, near Hamilton avenue, early today when the agents left their machine to ask the occupants of another to move to one side so they could pass. The agents, C. S. Johnston, 30, of 232 Romeo street, and George B. Catherwood, 41, of Ruxton street, were treated at Marine Hospital. Their blackjacks and revolvers were taken during the melee.

Fatal Crash Brings Raid On 'Student Speakeasy'

A beautifully furnished bungalow on Rossiyn Farm road, Robinson Township, frequented by high school students, according to county detectives, was raided yesterday and moonshine, wine and two slot machines confiscated.

The raid followed the questioning of Clement Garrahan, 21, of 13 Admiral Dewey avenue, Ingram, held in County Jail in default of $10,000 bond in connection with an automobile collision on Steubenville pike Wednesday night in which three persons were killed and six injured.

According to county detectives, Garrahan admitted he had been drinking and said he had obtained his liquor at the raided bungalow. James R. Yeager, said to be the proprietor, was arrested and held in $3,500 bond. He is to be arraigned before Justice of the Peace J. A. Watson in Ingram. Garrahan will be taken from jail to appear against him.

The raid was made by County Detective John W. Geisler, who said the patronage was confined almost exclusively to high school students.

PARK SCORNS RACKETS' AID

District Attorney Andrew T. Park last night replied to critics for the first time during his campaign for re-election, declaring that "while he hoped for and welcomed support from all sources, he wanted none that brought with it a yoke."

Waving aside all political affiliations as having influence over his duties as District Attorney, he said:

"Where I stand on the rackets can be seen from my records. Of the 960 racket cases tried by my office, the percentage shows 85.6 per cent of them ended in conviction.

"That expresses my attitude towards the rackets.

"I was the first to get an election fraud conviction in the history of the county, and I supervised or personally handled 87 indictments for election fraud.

"I value my reputation more than my job."

Two Approvals Needed in Sale Of Wabash Tube

Two decisions will be necessary to approve the sale of the Wabash Bridge and Tunnel to the Commissioners of Allegheny County for $3,000,000, before the deal can become effective. One by the Interstate Commerce Commission and one by the Public Service Commission.

Examiner W. F. Best of the Public Service commission heard the testimony yesterday and will submit a copy of the record to the Interstate Commerce Commission. Two protestants appeared to make formal objection to the sale. They were the Terminal Coal and Dock Company, with retail yards at Fairmont street and J. R. Lord, a dealer in bakers supplies, in Liberty street.

The railroad company claims the coal company has no claim on the railroad, asserting the company is no longer a tenant.

Lord claims that vacation of the railroad's property north of the Monongahela River will greatly increase his cost of doing business.

The Interstate Commerce Commission will decide if the interstate commerce traffic should be abandoned on that part of the railroad's route sold to the County. The Public Service Commission will decide the local and state questions involved.

LINDBERGH BARS SIBERIAN ROUTE

By JAMES P. YOUNG
International News Service

TOKIO, Sept. 11.—Col. Charles A. Lindbergh has not decided definitely what route he and Mrs. Lindbergh will follow on their return flight from China to the United States, but he has decided definitely it will not be the northern, or Siberian, route, he said today in an exclusive interview with International News Service. Col. Lindbergh said:

"The Siberian route is inadvisable in the winter time with a plane not equipped with wheels or skis. Really, we can not determine until our visit to China has been completed which route we will take."

The interview was granted on the eve of Col. and Mrs. Lindbergh's start for China. Lindbergh said he and Mrs. Lindbergh will be one of three. Across the Pacific by way of Honolulu, across Europe and the Atlantic by way of the Azores or across Europe and home by way of the South Atlantic.

MALONE FLAYS COYNE AND M'GOVERN

Says Commissioner Barks Enough, Questions His Independence, Motives

The Malone-McGovern feud broke out again last night.

James F. Malone, launching a tirade against County Commission candidates Charles C. McGovern and James J. Coyne in the Watt school, replied to their previous caustic comments on him with answers equally bitter.

He said to Coyne:

"He accused me of cheating Mayor Magee, Mayor Kline, McGovern and himself. Mayor Magee wouldn't say that. He's a gentleman. I have a letter from Mayor Kline, received not long ago in which he was profuse in his thanks for my service on the Planning Commission. As to cheating, Coyne, that's a pretty hard job. You can't cheat cheaters. But he didn't accuse me of cheating the people or trying to cheat the Federal government."

McGOVERN BARKS ENOUGH

Branding his erstwhile associate McGovern as a "watchdog who certainly barks enough," he demanded to know what side he had taken in the fight against Kline in the mayoralty fight two years ago when Malone and Mahood lost to Kline and predicted a Kline-McGovern hookup.

Questioning McGovern's independence, Malone said the three Councilmen on McGovern's ticket, Garland, Anderson and McArdle were real independents, adding:

"They are on the independent ticket because I was smart enough to get them there.

"I tried to get Mansfield and McGovern together, but couldn't."

Addressing himself to McGovern, after praising candidates William D. Mansfield and Joseph G. Armstrong, Malone asked what constructive work had he done, he asked.

"Was it accusing the other Commissioners of stealing 30 cents on the dollar and not proving it?"

COYNE-McGOVERN LINKED

"Tonight a payroller handed me a handbill of the Kline ticket and on it was McGovern and Coyne for Commissioner. They will deny it. They have. But the votes from Coyne's ward for McGovern will tell the story.

"I am asking if Mr. McGovern is so holy. If Armstrong or Woodside or Mackrell used their offices for political purposes, McGovern would tell the newspapers.

"But ask him what he is using the state's canal board office in the courthouse for?

"I ask you, Mr. McGovern, did you vote for any appropriations? Did you vote for the appropriation for the McKees Rocks Bridge, the West End Bridge, the Ohio River boulevard, the Boston Bridge or the Verona boulevard, or the voting machine appropriation? Did you vote for the voting machines themselves? did you sign the contract for them? Did you think the Poole Engineering machines were so wonderful because the company put several of your friends to work in Baltimore?

"Do you believe everyone who disagrees with you is a crook?"

MALONE URGES TICKET

Malone spoke for the Malone ticket which, headed by Judge Drew, included Mansfield, Armstrong, Park, Mackrell, Topley, Foster, Cain, Woodside, Vogt, Kerr, Anderson, McArdle, Garland and Houston, as well as Martin Griffin for alderman and Harry E. Lewis for constable.

German Republic Thanks U. S. Girl For $1 Bill

NEW YORK, Sept. 11 (AP).—One of the proudest little girls in New York City today was Dorothy Guth, 8.

Several weeks ago Dorothy, whose parents are German, saw headlines about the financial crisis in Germany. She took a dollar bill her father had given her, inclosed it in an envelope and sent it to the German government, in care of a German newspaper.

Legionnaire Urges Support for Kennedy

Support for the candidacy of President Judge R. A. Kennedy to succeed himself to the bench of County Court, was urged last night by John B. Nicklas, past commander of the Allegheny County committee of the American Legion, according to H. M. Northing, of Judge Kennedy's campaign committee.

The Judge was indorsed also by Joseph Howley, chairman of the East End Independent Republican organization; the North Side Civic Association, and all political organizations of Blawnox.

"The intelligent voter will weigh the training and experience of the contending candidates in deciding whom to elect as a Judge of Common Pleas Court. I feel that I have made a good County Court Judge and I ask promotion that I think is deserved."

NEW YORK, Sept. 11.—(AP.)—Poultney Bigelow, historian who apologized in person to Wilhelm Hohenzollern for things he said about him at the outbreak of the war, has devoted part of his seventy-sixth birthday to prayer. He said:

"I prayed that God would send us a Mussolini to clean up the crime situation in this country."

Mayo Clinic Sends Serum to Woman

CHICAGO, Sept. 11.—(AP.)—A 10-day supply of cortin, a serum requiring the adrenal glands of 150 head of cattle for a single treatment, was received yesterday from the Mayo clinic at Rochester, Minn., for the use of Mrs. Andrew Nelson, impoverished mother of six children, who was near death from Addison's disease. A three-day supply was brought here yesterday by airplane from the University of Buffalo.

Judge Cool to Constable's Plea for 19 Poll Guards

Constable Earl R. Sams of the Fifth Ward, who is running for re-election, met with a cool reception when he went before Judge James H. Gray in Quarter Sessions Court with a petition asking the appointment of 19 deputy constables to serve at the 19 election districts of the ward on primary day next Tuesday, to keep order. Judge Gray said after the hearing:

"It would be a fearsome job to appoint these men. I will take the matter under advisement."

Judge Gray summoned David B. Roberts, Mayor leader in the ward, and asked him if he thought the deputies were needed. Roberts said the police had always been able to preserve order in the past and remarked:

"It looks to me as though Sams is trying to get an organization of 19 men, paid by the county, to work for his re-election."

DONAHOE'S—the ONLY butter in Pittsburgh wrapped with Dry Ice

Dry Ice protects Donahoe's Butter for two hours on the hottest day—there's not the slightest bit of softening. You get your butter home in exactly the same condition as it was when you bought it.

And remember, there's no extra charge for wrapping Donahoe's Butter with Dry Ice—that's the sort of service you expect from The Food Store of America.

HINTS UNDERSTANDING

The Coyne circle charges that Malone did not come into the open until he had talked with representatives of both Mansfield and Armstrong and hints that in return for his energy on behalf of Armstrong the latter may cut the organization Council ticket in some wards.

Coyne followers are pointing out that many old Leslie factionists, now aligned with Armstrong, are working diligently for all the three candidates on the independent council ticket and urge that upon the Mayor as another suspicious circumstance.

Meanwhile the campaign moves close to election day with the probability that all four candidates will run alone on the ticket with deals, double deals and trading going along quietly practically throughout the county.

MELLON RETURNS

W. L. Mellon returned to Pittsburgh last night from Cataumet, but it is understood he has had conferences scheduled for today with either Armstrong or Coyne, with both of whom he is friendly. Previous efforts by Mellon to bring about a combination of the two organization leaders met failure, both refusing to meet in joint conference with the former state chairman. It is reported that Mellon, while personally favorable to the election of both men, is not planning pressure in an effort at this late date to form a Coyne-Armstrong combination.

Both Armstrong and Coyne have denied that at a Stowe Township meeting the Commissioner advised independents to vote for the Senator as a second candidate. Armstrong mentioned Coyne's name as one of those running "among a group of good men," but it was explained by one of his friends he did so because Coyne happened to be sitting on the platform and was the only other candidate present.

Princess Gives Up Title to Regain U. S. Citizenship

CLEVELAND, Sept. 11.—(AP)—Princess Daria Kara-Georgevitch has traded her title for return of her United States citizenship.

Born 72 years ago as Abigail Pankhurst, daughter of a pioneer Cleveland shipbuilder, the former princess first married Herbert Wright, of Cleveland, and then Hugar Pratt, of New York. Both died and in 1913 she married Prince Alexis Kara-Georgevitch of Serbia. After the death of the prince she left Serbia to live in Cannes, France. Recently she returned to her former home.

She went before Federal Judge Samuel H. West yesterday and by renouncing allegiance to King Alexander of Jugoslavia and pledging allegiance to the United States became repatriated.

LEGION SPEEDS MOVE TO AID JOBLESS

14 Governors Respond to Parley Plea as Gifford Pushes Federal Plans

WASHINGTON, Sept. 11.—(AP)—Fourteen governors of states have responded to the American Legion's invitation to attend an unemployment relief conference here next Monday.

Legion officials announced today Governors White of Ohio, Woodring of Kansas, Russell of Georgia and Blackwood of South Carolina had signified they would attend. The chief executives of Maine, Mississippi, Tennessee, New Hampshire, New Mexico, Utah, Wisconsin, North Dakota, Minnesota and Virginia are to send representatives.

STRAWN TO ATTEND

Silas Strawn, president of the United States Chamber of Commerce, William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, Gen. James G. Harbord, president of the Radio Corporation of America, also are to attend.

While the Legionnaires went ahead with their plans, Walter S. Gifford, national relief director of the Hoover unemployment relief organization, was about ready today to set his machine in motion.

He chose Fred C. Croxton, his assistant director, to head his third committee, which will work alongside the two groups previously appointed, headed by Owen D. Young, of New York, and Harry A. Wheeler, of Chicago.

BAKER APPOINTED

Newton D. Baker, former secretary of war, was appointed to Croxton's committee. Others of the 18 included John Barton Payne, chairman of the Red Cross; Matthew Woll, vice president of the American Federation of Labor; L. J. Taber, of the National Grange; J. Herbert Case, of New York, president of the Association of Community Chests and Councils, and William J. Ellis, of Trenton, president of the American Association of Public Welfare Officials.

Police Car Radio Too Loud, E. E. Folk Complain

Comes now a new complaint.

Cruising the East End section early today, Officers Dan McGreevy and Harold Nixon, of Scout Car No. 3, of the East End Police Station, received a call to get in touch with the radio operator. Said the operator:

"Were you in the 7300 block of Hamilton avenue just now?"

The officers replied in the affirmative. The operator said:

"Turn down your loud speaker. Residents are complaining it is too loud."

BILLINGS CUTS MOONEY LINK

SACRAMENTO, Cal., Sept. 11.—(AP)—In an open letter "to whom it may concern," Warren K. Billings, Folsom Prison inmate, said he had definitely broken with Thomas Mooney, with whom he was convicted for the 1916 San Francisco Preparedness Day parade bombing when ten persons were killed, Billings said.

"I have been ignored by those actively handling the defense until I have become a mere nonentity in the case."

Billings said he was setting up his own defense organization. He said nothing will be done on his behalf without his personal consent. He said he believed the so-called Mooney-Billings Defense League has been operating for all practical purposes as a league primarily for the interests of Tom Mooney, and that he (Billings) had been left out of their plans and proceedings.

AVERT STRIKE OF MUSICIANS

Pittsburgh theater musicians will continue work until negotiations have been completed in New York, officials of the Pittsburgh Theater Managers' Association said today. The temporary agreements averts for the present a threatened strike of musicians due to a proposed cut of 15 per cent in pay or a concession to the theater managers whereby they may determine the size of their orchestras.

The union demands a renewal of the present contract with a minimum wage of about $80 per week, or for a bulk contract for the entire orchestra of each theater. Efforts will be made during the next week to reach a permanent wage agreement. The old contract expired Saturday at midnight. It was signed in 1928.

All In A Day

By Mark Hellinger

WHEN YOU ARE fortunate enough to be able to sit on the outside and look in, it is amusing to watch the antics of a jealous man. The things those boys will do! You've seen them yourself, of course. Everyone has. The greatest comedies are enacted by the jealous hombre. The pity of it all is that, in his eyes, the comedy is tragedy.

The disappointed lover will do the silliest things. I've known men who would hire suites and spyglasses across the way from stage doors in order to find out who was calling for those old gals of theirs. I've seen men so jealous that, for years after an affair was over, they would go through an active whispering campaign in order to ruin the girls they still loved.

The strangest reaction to a lost love I have ever heard, however, was told to me the other night by Mr. Marc Lachmann, the genial press agent.

Some years back, it seems, a young producer fell very much in love with a little lady who was then playing a minor part in one of his productions. For some three years he built her up by degrees. That was easy for him to do because, while he was building, he married her.

"I have big plans in mind for you, honey," he assured her. "You're going to be a great star not only in America, but in England as well. Just you hold tight and bide your time. Your husband loves you—and he's working for you. Just wait."

As is usual in such cases, the little wifey didn't have quite as much talent as her husband thought she had. By the time the three years had rolled around, she was billed as the greatest of stars. But billing doesn't swamp the box offices, and hubby discovered that his back was not only against the wall, but half way through it.

He was still completely goofy about his bride and had never forgotten the fact that he wanted to star her in England. Neither, you may be sure, had she. So, after she had spoken to him about it several times, he cabled to various theatrical managers in London and offered her as an attraction.

Sadly enough, the boys on the other side couldn't see the American star at all, at all. They simply weren't interested. The producer, loving the gal as he did, couldn't tell her that the English didn't think she was so hot. He decided to take her to London and star her himself.

He went to everybody he could possibly approach for money. He took $1,000 here and $500 there. Then, when he thought he had almost enough, he engaged a portion of his company and sailed for England. He was a little worried, but plenty happy. For he was doing everything he could to further the career of the one he loved best—his little wife. Amen brethren.

The company arrived in London. A theater was obtained. Rehearsals began. The producer spent more and more of the money he had borrowed. He had purchased scenery of the most expensive kind. It was a costly venture and if the play was a failure, the producer would be absolutely sunk.

Exactly two days before the show was scheduled to open, the star called her husband aside. In much the same voice she might use in discussing the weather, she informed her husband that she would be unable to open in the show because Lord G. didn't want her to.

The producer couldn't believe his ears.

"What—what are you talking about?" he stammered. "What has Lord G. got to do with our productions?"

His wife smiled prettily.

"He hasn't much to do with the production," she replied sweetly, "but he has plenty to do with me. Lord G. and I are going to be married as soon as I have obtained my divorce from you. Do you mind?"

The husband, as sometimes happens, went into hysterics. He pleaded, coaxed, threatened and screamed. He pointed out that he had brought the girl to the top from nowhere. He told her that everything he owned—and owed, too, was tied up in that show.

But wifey merely handed him that sweet smile. Her mind was made up. And once her mind was in that condition, hubby knew the game was all over . . .

And now for the jealousy angle that we talked about away back in the beginning. For two or three days, the producer mooned around with his mind as foggy as London itself. His show was off. His wife was gone. Here, indeed, was a pretty how-do-you-do.

He drew forth his pocketbook. He found there exactly £15, which meant that there was about $75 between him and starvation. Thoughtfully he gazed at the money. Suddenly he snapped his fingers. He walked to the nearest livery stable and drove a hard bargain with the proprietor.

The following morning, just as the sun was rising, five huge wagons rolled through the entrance to Lord G.'s estate on the outskirts of London. Each wagon was filled to the brim with scenery, stage props, ropes, pulleys and various other theatrical accessories.

Every 10 yards or so, the wagons would stop and a piece of scenery would be dropped on the lawn. Another 10 yards—another piece of scenery. And so it went until Lord G.'s highly prized estate was fairly strewn with theatrical props of every description.

Directly in front of the mansion, the wagons were stopped and the last bits of equipment were thrown to the ground. Into the middle of the mess stepped the producer. He raised his fist in the direction of Lord G.'s window.

And off he drove . . .

HE IS a former newspaperman who is now out of a job. How he lives, I have no idea—but I will say that he looks as though he is living mighty well. He is generally a little stewed, and he is always very happy. It's all very mysterious to me.

I ran into him in a club the other night. It had been five months since our previous meeting—and the reason I recalled that other meeting so well was because of the beautiful blonde who was trying to help him out of the joint. Leave it to Hellinger to have noticed her.

The moment I met him again, my mind went back to that other episode.

"How have you been, Tom?" I asked him as we shook hands. "And, by the way, who was that beautiful little blonde who was with you that night in that speakeasy?"

He looked at me reproachfully.

"That's a fine question to ask a big Broadway guy," he cried. "You'll have to make yourself a lil' more clear. Where was the speakeasy? What did the girl look like? And when was the night?"...

LIBERTY RAMP AIDS TRAFFIC

The Horace street ramp for the Boulevard of the Allies to the Liberty Bridge is the first step in a by-pass system which could free the downtown streets of nearly 50 per cent of the present traffic, Frank I. Duggan, chairman of the Better Traffic Committee said today. At least 1,000 vehicles a day can be passed from the downtown district through the ramp to the bridge approach, Duggan said. Analyses made by the Bureau of Traffic Planning and submitted to Duggan shows that 50 per cent of the traffic on the triangle's streets is through traffic not stopping to do business.

Ban Women Jurors In Massachusetts

BOSTON, Sept. 11.—(INS.)—Declaring the Nineteenth Amendment has been too freely interpreted, a full bench of the Supreme Court today had decided women are ineligible to jury service in Massachusetts.

The decision was rendered on exceptions taken by Genevieve W. Wilcoxy from her conviction by a Suffolk Superior Court jury composed wholly of men on a charge of keeping liquor for sale. Her counsel contended the jury list was illegal because it did not contain the names of women.

CABOT WARNS UTILITIES

BEDFORD SPRINGS, Pa., Sept. 11. (AP.)—The relationship between politics and utilities came to the fore again today as the Pennsylvania Electric Association closed its twenty-fourth annual convention.

Prof. Philip Cabot of the graduate school of business administration of Harvard University told the leaders of the electric industry in Pennsylvania that self-regulation and not government regulation is what the industry needs. Prof. Cabot said:

"If the men who now dominate the industry have not the wisdom and foresight to take the necessary measures, they will have no right to complain if they see it bedeviled by politicians and demagogues.

"Attacks on holding companies now being made by aspirants for political office may not come to anything, but they are ominous. Suspicion is being planted in the public mind, and no man can tell when the discovery of some questionable promotion may cause it to burst into flames. The only safe course for the leaders of the industry is to lay all their cards upon the table and to use most scrupulous care to make sure that the public is most completely informed."

Gen. Crowder was said to be improved. He blames his illness on "old age."

Steel Mill Blast Imperils Dwelling

A blast that occurred while workmen were razing a mill of the Crucible Steel Company, Thirty-fifth street and Allegheny Valley Railroad, yesterday hurled a 300-pound steel fragment 500 yards into the back yard of a residence at 164 Thirty-eight street, narrowly missing the dwelling. Workmen were blasting an open hearth furnace.

The Loudspeaker

By LOUIS REID

NEW YORK, Sept. 11—Cupping an ear to Amos 'n' Andy seems no longer to be a household ritual that listeners no longer reach for them as they reach say, for toothbrushes. Not so long ago the activities of the bewildered Harlem cats were the dominant amusement lure of the republic.

Perhaps Amos 'n' Andy need a vacation from the radio. At least that is the belief of the broadcasting archdukes. . . . A vacation, followed by a grand flourish of ballyhoo in preparation for their return. But it would have to be ballyhoo that would reach the ears of children, for it was children more than anyone else who made of the blackface comedians household gods. . . .

Walter Damrosch calls William Merrigan Daly the "finest young conductor in America." Can't recall that Damrosch ever expressed himself so personally before. . . . It won't be long before the veteran of the podium returns with his paternal story-telling manner, announcing in his familiar way "the next number my friends will be Vogner's Ride of the Valkyries."

More and more are radio musical directors abandoning their batons. B. A. Rolfe, Freddie Rich, Frank Black, all three believe they can coax music better from horn and saxophone by finger-signaling, arm-waving. . . . Yet, there is something about a baton that lends grace and authority to a conductor. . . . The three Landt Brothers, all unwed, live with their parents in Jackson Heights, Long Island. Their attic serves as a rehearsal studio. The parents, listening in the parlar below, criticize the audition. Bing Crosby is a product of Gonzaga College in Spokane. Did you ever hear of Gonzaga College, before? . . . Televising costly diamonds is the newest means of radio folk for capturing newspaper publicity. A more telling method of hunting headlines would be to lead Mr. Legs Diamond to the microphones.

There must be something in a name after all . . . or why do all these Riggs people name their children Glenn?

Darrell V. Martin

Glenn Riggs the KDKA announcer was checking over the list of other Glenn Riggs who have written, stopped in the studio or been named after him and had reached the total eight yesterday when Glenn Riggs of Altoona and Tom Riggs of "Riggs and Moke" were ushered in by the hostess . . . that made nine Glenn Riggses and 10 Riggses all together . . . Question a Day:

You made a big fuss about Lil Dagover being a German movie star when she stopped in Pittsburgh. Now wouldn't you be surprised to learn that she isn't German at all?—Aba G., Glenwood.

Answer — Sorry, but Lil told us everything—beg pardon—we mean 'most everything. How she was born Lilith Witt in Madioen, Java, Dutch East Indies, and all that. Even her birthday—September 30. Lil told us lots of things when it developed that we had a common admiration in Greta Garbo. Lil even told us the name of her first picture—"I Spy," from the novel of that name, by the Baroness Carla Jenssen. Her English is very good, having a delightful continental accent.

Mrs. Denver Livingood and William Fourbits—what's in a name?—won a KQV Memory Contest . . .

Came a letter yesterday to Percy A. Boyd, KDKA, with some of the queerest postage stamps ever seen in these parts: it was a complaint from a family in Alexandria, Egypt. "Please change the time of Amos 'n' Andy; we have to stay up until 2 a. m. to hear them."

Speaking of mail reminds us, have you tried Col. Stoopnagle's new step—The Special Delivery Stomp?

Nearly a thousand telegrams of consolation were received at the H. P. Davis residence yesterday . . . J. R. Sheffield, former ambassador to Mexico, has been elected temporarily to take Mr. Davis' post on the NBC Board of Directors.

WALTER WINCHELL
On Broadway

(Copyright, 1931, Daily Mirror, Inc.)

To a Critic

With condescending words you put your ban
On what I write—dismiss it with an air.
In other words, a sentimental man
Is one for whom you do not greatly care.
But, sir, I do not write for you at all.
In fact, you are the furthest from my mind;
I know my verses very seldom pall
On those who follow any vagrant wind.

My friends are true—my love affairs are gay,
In fact, I have a most enchanting time.
I can't please all my readers, anyway;
Then, too, before you criticize each rhyme—

Remember, it's an easy task to slight them,

—Don Wahn.

Form of Criticism

Added to our Crisp Cracks from Caustic Critics is the one written by a reviewer who summed up "Doorway to Hell" in one line.

"'Doorway to Hell,'" he asserted, "certainly isn't as gay as the road to it."

Eavesdropped

It was at the premiere of a new show the other night. The Al Jolsons entered the lobby.

"Al Jolson?" queried his friend, "who's Al Jolson?"

"Al Jolson, you dope," interrupted a columnist, "is the feller who for 10 years cried for his Mammy—and got Ruby Keeler!"

And They Carry Out Ideas!

Then there's the one about the amazingly conceited actor who sought an engagement in a new play.

"You claim," said the producer, "that you have every qualification of a first-rate actor?"

"I only lack one thing," said the Westphalian, "I am slightly deaf—the result of so much applause, you know."

Lesson in Journalism

"Your tribute to O. Henry the other evening pleased me a lot," writes W. D. O'B, of Boston. "Your suggestion that reporters read him to improve their knowledge of chronicling and English was excellent. My daughter's English prof. recommended 'The Hiding of Black Bill' by O. Henry. Any other story?"

His best short story, many will agree, is "A Municipal Report"

Then He Hung Up

The publisher of the Daily Mirror was baited into a phone call from a stranger the other busy afternoon.

"I must see you," the voice said breathlessly, "it is of the greatest importance to you, sir!"

"Can't you give me a hint, if it is so important?" urged the publisher.

"Well," said the speaker, "it's about a column—a new Broadway column. One with real news in it—scoops—wait'll you see it?"

"But I have enough columns in the paper," said the owner. "What makes you think I need another Broadway column?"

"Well," said the chap, "it's all over Broadway that Winchell is retiring——"

"Yeah?" yeah'd the publisher. "That shows you, and it also shows me, your kind of a Broadway column!"

Quiteso, Quiteso

George Jean Nathan reminds us that the chief complaint about the critics is that they are always suffering from dyspepsia. Nathan, however, points out that Percy Hammond's ailment is high blood pressure, John Anderson's is a steady ringing in the ears, Gilbert Gabriel's is a headache and his own aches are from neuralgia in the arm—not one of the critics, he proves, suffers from dyspepsia.

But Arthur Hopkins, Sam H. Harris, the Shuberts and many of the other producers take trips to Hot Springs and Europe annually for their dyspepsia!

Oop!

Miss Guinan and a patron at her Woodmansten Inn rendezvous began sassing each other.

"I want to pay you a compliment," hiccoughed the customer, "I want to tell you that liquor certainly makes you look beautiful!"

"Liquor?" yelled Texas, "why I haven't had a drink!"

O, Mr. Wilstach!

Suggested for the simile dictionary: E. Luoma: She was as thin as 6 o'clock. . . Lester Laning: Ridiculous as a badly sunburned fireman. . . B. Easton: False, like a radio announcer's laugh—Dangerous as telling Capone you are through using his beer. . . H. I. Phillips: Exaggerated as a newspaper's estimate of a gangster's funeral, and, as gullible as a man who would agree to hold the Lindbergh baby.

Gag

And Lester Clark offers the one about the legit actor and the vaudeville ham who were talking shop.

"You look worried," said the legit, "what's the matter?"

"Oh," said the three-a-dayer, "I've got 12 weeks booked solid but I need a crummy looking mean faced bum, and I can't find one!"

"I have it," suggested the legit, "why not use the manager in every theater you play!"

Constance Bennett Film Opens in Sheridan

"The Common Law," starring Constance Bennett, opens today on the screen in the Sheridan Square. Miss Bennett has the role of a "secret woman" in a great man's life. The picture recently had a downtown presentation.

Franz Josef Should See This One

By CLARENCE E. GRUNDISH

If you enjoy finding fault with the movies, go down to the Fulton and enjoy a treat. The feature attraction is "Daybreak," starring Ramon Novarro. By the craziest stretch of imagination you can't call it much of a picture.

It is one of those romances of the pre-war Vienna, and there is one of those gay lieutenants, who gads about with the ladies and sits in at the gaming tables. The tradition of his regiment says that if one can't pay a debt of honor with cash he must pay it with his life. But our hero is saved from suicide by a general who happens also to be his rich uncle.

CUTTING-UP EXERCISE

Mr. Novarro is quite the dashing cut-up. But he has no monopoly on the cut-ups. Either the studio scissors men or Pa Pitt's censors did a bit of cutting up, too. You get into the middle of the story and find it as tangled up as a ball of yarn in the paws of a playful cat.

From almost any angle, the film has something the matter with it.

AN ACCENTING STAR

Generally the individual star can help save a poorly conceived film. But not so in this case. Mr. Novarro helps to spoil the affair by an accent, which sounds more Italian than Austrian.

Supporting players include Helen Chandler and Jean Hersholt.

News pictures and other short film subjects are on the bill. One of these is a preview announcement that "Bad Girl" will open in that theater next Thursday. Which is something to look forward to.

Flannery Asks Anti-Trust Law Suspension

WOMAN FREED, MAY SUE IN 'FRAMEUP'

THE ROAD BACK
By Erich Maria Remarque

CHAPTER II.

We put on cheerful faces. But who can deceive a dying peasant. While Bethke is yet telling him that he is to be operated on later, but the wounds must heal a little first, Wessling already knows all. He is silent a moment, then he cries aloud: "Yes, you stand there and are whole—and are going home—and I—I—four years and now this—four years—and then this—"

"You're going into the hospital, all right, Heinrich," says Bethke, comforting him.

But he would not listen. "Let be."

Thereafter he does not say much. Nor does he want to be carried in; but to stay outside. The hospital is on a gentle slope, whence one can see far out along the avenue down which we have come. It is all gay and golden. The earth lies there, still and smooth and secure; even fields are to be seen, little, brown, tilled strips, right close by the hospital. The distance is blue and everywhere peaceful, for from here the view is away from the front.

Wessling is still. He is observing everything most narrowly. His eyes are clear and alert. He is a farmer and at home with the country; he understands it better and otherwise than we. He knows that he must leave it now. So he will miss nothing; nor does he take his eyes from it again. Minute by minute he grows paler. At last he makes a movement and whispers, "Ernst—"

I bend to his mouth. "Take out my things—" he says.

"There's plenty of time for that, Heinrich."

"No, no—get on!"

TRAGEDY BEFORE PEACE

I spread them out before him. The pocketbook of frayed calico, the knife, the watch, the money—one gets to know these things.

Loose in the pocketbook is the picture of his wife.

"Show me," he says.

I take it out and hold it so that he can see it. A clear brownish face. He considers it. After a while he whispers, "So that is finished," and his lips quiver. At last he turns away his head.

"Take it," he says. I do not understand what he means, but I do not want to ask him more questions, so I thrust it into my pocket. "Take those to her—" He looks at the other things. I nod. "And tell her—" He looked at me with a strange great gaze, murmurs, shakes his head and groans. I try desperately to understand, but now he only gurgles. He twitches, breathes more heavily, more slowly, with pauses, slackening—then once more, very deep and sighing—and suddenly has eyes as if he had been blinded—and is dead.

Next morning we are in the front trenches for the last time. Hardly a shot is fired. The war is ended. In an hour we must pull out. We need never come back here again. When we go, we go forever.

What there is to be destroyed we destroy. It is little enough—only a couple of dugouts. Then comes the order to retreat.

GAZE OVER BATTLEFIELD

It is a strange moment. We stand side by side and look toward the Front. Light trailers of mist lie over the ground. The lines of shell holes and trenches are clearly visible. They are, indeed, only the last line—they belong really to the reserve position—still they are well within range of the guns. How often we have gone in through those saps! How often and how few we have come back through them! Gray stretches the monotonous landscape before us; in the distance what is left of a copse, a few stumps, the ruins of a village, in the midst of it one solitary high wall that has withstood it all.

"Yes," says Bethke meditatively, "it's four years, four years we've been sitting there—"

Synopsis

Rumors of impending peace reach a handful of German soldiers in the trenches—the remnant of a full platoon. Ernst, who enlisted when a schoolboy, tells the story of the group. The bare hope of peace disturbs the men. Hours drag by on leaden feet. Each minute under fire seems now agelong. A wedge of geese flying high overhead brings torturing thought of a square meal. Then, in a last enemy attack, Brandt is killed by a direct shell hit. Lieut. Ludwig Breyer stops a bullet in the arm. Wessling is mortally wounded, but taken along on the retreat by his companions. They halt well behind the front lines at a dressing station. Wessling must wait for an hour before the doctor can stitch up his wounds.

WILL ROGERS SAYS

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., Sept. 11.

To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

We had quite a mixup over an international speedboat race. I know Gar Wood, and I don't think he is that kind of a sportsman, but, whether he did or did not, we know the Englishman had the fastest boat; the same as they have the fastest auto and the fastest plane. But I believe our women have got it on 'em for speed. They are 'bout our last hope to hold a speed record.

TROLLEYS KILL TWO, HURT ONE

A street car that struck two small children crossing North avenue at Palo Alto street, North Side, yesterday, fatally injured Evelyn Stewart, 4, of 110 Stockton avenue. Her companion, Richard Singer, 2, of 304 West North avenue, escaped serious injury.

Evelyn was pronounced dead when admitted to the Presbyterian Hospital. Richard was treated and taken home. Homicide detectives arrested John P. Scanlon, 33, of 1422 Faulsey way, the motorman. He was released on bail pending the Coroner's inquest.

Richard was visiting the Singer home with his parents, and the two children strayed from the yard and attempted to cross the street.

Mrs. Mary McCoy, 70, of 2915 Penn avenue, was killed when she stepped in front of a street car at Liberty avenue and Thirtieth street. She was dead when admitted to St. Francis Hospital. Police said she stepped from the pavement in front of the car after a truck had passed.

Association Backs McGrath Candidacy

The Mt. Oliver Republican Association, through its secretary, A. F. Amman, has announced indorsement of Attorney John J. McGrath, candidate for Judge of County Court. McGrath spoke last night at a mass meeting in Braddock Municipal Building. He will broadcast at 7:30 p. m. today over WCAE.

$300 Auto Blaze Probed By Police

North Side police today were investigating a fire which damaged the automobile of A. G. Klickel, in front of his home at 943 Iten street, at 4 a. m. Firemen said the roof of the car had been saturated with gasoline. Loss was estimated at $300.

Relief Building Produces Many Houses of Cards

-By ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER-

Although we matriculated at Concord and graduated at Yorktown we can still take lessons from the English.

Chancellor Snowden has just lopped $456,000,000 off the traditional old British budget. King George has donated half his salary to relief and Eddie will give up steeplechasing until the hoss recovers.

That's patriotism or better. When the Siamese twins get appendicitis they've got to believe in co-operations.

And that's what we need over here. Fewer prescriptions and more medicine.

We're doing a lot of talking about relief. But it all winds up building an extra wing on a house of cards.

We'd better do something sensible before Congress meets in November.

Having heard a lot of talking we'd like to know when the digging starts. We concede that curiosity killed the cat. But information brought it to life again.

FEDERAL BOARD URGED AS AID TO INDUSTRY

Opening of Breweries Advocated as Means of Solving Jobless Problem

STATE COLLEGE, Pa., Sept. 11.—J. Rogers Flannery, of Pittsburgh, speaking before the sixteenth annual engineering extension convention here yesterday, advocated creation of a federal emergency industries board and temporary suspension of anti-trust laws.

The big question, he said, is how to stabilize industry so that labor can be protected against periods of abnormal unemployment.

INDUSTRIAL BOARD

An increase in the world's population of 22 per cent in the last 30 years has been more than matched by increased facilities for commodity output, he asserted. He continued:

"One method by which our industrial leaders can present a solid front and make an aggressive attack on our common enemy—depression—is for the President to immediately create a United States emergency industries board, composed of directors representing each important branch of industry, trade and finance in this country.

"The purpose of this board would be to stimulate every possible avenue of industry throughout the country by securing co-operation of all the different branches of industry in a common drive for the development of business.

"If new developments can be encouraged that will open up business, our financial leaders should respond to the request of the board and provide necessary credit.

DROP ANTI-TRUST LAWS

"The federal government should become a part of this emergency board through a representative director and its contribution should be a temporary setting aside of the Sherman anti-trust and Clayton acts until the emergency has disappeared.

"During the World War the government co-operated with industry in every possible manner whenever such co-operation brought about greater production and helped win the war. Why cannot the government today back up such an emergency board and assist the bankers to carry the load of additional credits that may be necessary to start our wheels of industry under the plans that could be laid out by the United States emergency board?"

Flannery urged reopening the breweries, stating that it has been estimated 1,000,000 men could be given employment within 60 days if beer and light wines were permitted.

OPINIONS HERE

Wide differences of opinion were expressed today on the plan of J. Rogers Flannery to assist business out of the depression through the suspension of economic laws and the appointment of an emergency control board. A. C. Robinson, president of the Peoples-Pittsburgh Trust Company, favored setting aside anti-trust laws, but

Hunt Hit-Run Driver For Nurse's Death as Traffic Toll Grows

A hit-run driver who fled while first aid was being administered to Miss Blanche Hensley, 50, nurse in the County Home, Woodville, injured on Washington road, was being sought by county detectives today. Miss Hensley died an hour later in the hospital of the home. The accident occurred early last night near the entrance to the county home.

Gus Weibel, 19, of 205 West Ninth avenue, Tarentum, was in a serious condition in the Citizens' General Hospital, New Kensington, today, as a result of the automobile in which he and four others were riding being struck by a street car at Delaware and Oakmont avenues, Oakmont, last night. The others were slightly hurt.

Bernice Conroy, 10, of 343 Braddock avenue, East Pittsburgh, was treated by a physician for severe body bruises after police said she stepped in front of an automobile driven by Joseph Snulezgrish, of 402 Talbot avenue, Braddock.

Charles Yee, a Chinese, of 522 Third avenue, was slightly injured when struck by an automobile at Smithfield street and the Boulevard of the Allies. Samuel Reese, 26, of 927 Ninth avenue, Beaver Falls, alleged driver, was charged with reckless driving by Central Station police.

Walter Gollwitzer, 34, of 1456 Mill street, Wilkinsburg, was injured about the head and body when his automobile collided with one driven by Frank Deczynski, 23, of 2211 Adams street, Natrona Heights, at Braddock and Kelly streets. He was taken to Pittsburgh Hospital.

Harry Bittner, Jr., 6, was cut about the head when he was thrown through the windshield of his father's car at Penn avenue and Twenty-second street. The father, Harry Bittner, of 2134 Liberty avenue, made a quick stop when another machine forced him to the curb, he told police.

COLLISION WITH TRUCK

Mrs. John Sylvester, 30, of Oakwood, and a daughter, Rita, 8, were in the Rochester General Hospital at Rochester, suffering injuries received when an automobile in which they were riding collided with a truck in Broadhead road, Aliquippa, last night, police said. Merle Steel, 30, driver of the truck, suffered a fractured left knee.

Two men were in the Columbia Hospital, one in a serious condition, after an automobile in which they were riding left the road, jumped a ditch and overturned in a yard at Peterman's Corner, Frankstown road, early today. The victims gave their names as H. Gunn, 25, of Coal Port, and Guard Richell, 25, Clearfield.

SLUMP ENDING, SAYS DAVIS

The clouds of depression are beginning to lift, United States Senator James J. Davis declared in an address today before students and teachers of Langley High School. He said in part:

"Economic conditions are not what they should be, and not only in America, but the entire world is struggling to regain its economic balance.

"We are coming out of this crisis because we have the brains and the inventive genius and the natural resources in America to do it. We will come out of these dark days as we have come out of all other periods of depression in the past."

Senator Davis told a meeting of the Ross Township Board of Trade last night that business conditions had taken a turn for the better.

RADIO TRIBUTE TO DR. DAVIS

Plans for a radio memorial service for the late Dr. Harry P. Davis, vice president and director of Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company and chairman of the National Broadcasting Company, will be held Sunday afternoon from 4:30 to 5 o'clock, it was announced today. Dr. Davis, who died in his home here at 4917 Wallingford street yesterday, was internationally known as "The Father of Broadcasting."

Funeral services will be held from the late home at 3 o'clock tomorrow. The body will be taken to Worcester, Mass., for burial on Sunday and the memorial service will follow soon after interment.

The memorial originating in the studios of KDKA here will be broadcast over the entire blue net work of the National Broadcasting Company.

'FRAMED,' SHE CHARGES!

Woman Arrested in Alleged Speakeasy Accuses Police

MRS. DOROTHY STEINOUR . . . 'POLITICAL PLOT,' SHE SAYS

LINE SHOWS DISTANCE FROM "RAIDED" BROAD STREET HOUSE TO THE POLICE STATION

POLITICAL PLOT CHARGED BY VICTIM

Vote Worker Calls Arrest Effort to Discredit Her; Police Action Scored

Mrs. Dorothy Steinour, district Republican chairman in the Eleventh Ward, a victim, she charges, of a "political frame-up," today was discharged in East End Police Court after a hearing on a charge of visiting a disorderly house.

Describing her arrest as a plot to discredit her in the eyes of East Liberty voters because she joined the ranks of the Independent Republicans in a campaign for a cleaner East Liberty, Mrs. Steinour contemplated filing a suit for damages, according to her counsel, Attorney Reuben J. Gershon.

PROPRIETOR FINED

Phil Butler, 43, NNeNgrNo, of 5705 Broad street, in whose home Mrs. Steinour was arrested, was fined $50 or 30 days in jail. Pauline Moore, Negro housemaid, charged with visiting a disorderly house, was discharged.

Mrs. Steinour was tried before Magistrate William McNamara, said to be an anti-administration leader, acting as East End Magistrate in the absence of Magistrate Charles Papale, who is ill. McNamara was recently shifted from the "Strip" district, the scene of the bitter Sullivan-O'Malley fight, to Oakland.

Butler charged that Mrs. Steinour had come to his house frequently to purchase liquor. He denied selling booze, but testified that he went out and got it for her. He was corroborated by Pauline. Mrs. Steinour denied Butler's charge and insisted that she had come to his house to visit Pauline, whom she had promised to obtain employment.

Police testified that the raid was made on a number of complaints that Butler's house was frequented by whites and Negroes.

ARREST SCORED

The arrest of Mrs. Steinour drew a scathing criticism from former Morals Court Magistrate A. D. Brandon and the Rev. Dr. Wofford T. Duncan, of the Emory Methodist Episcopal Church. Both declared the arrest the result of of a frame-up because of Mrs. Steinour's desertion of the regular Republican organization.

Declaring that the Eleventh Ward is teeming with graft and corruption, Attorney Gershon said:

"The dastardly frameup and arrest of Mrs. Steinour is but one of a number of attempts to intimidate Independent workers. The organization is desperate and will stop at absolutely nothing."

REPEAT PLAY IN CARNEGIE

One hundred and fifty persons will apear tonight in the cast of "Corporal Eagen," to be presented in the Carnegie Library at Carnegie by the members of the Heidelberg Volunteer Fire Department. The play was presented first last night.

Among the members of the cast are Robert Keenan, J. M. Brush, M. J. Hoban, Miss Margaret Sauers, Miss Ann Moloski, Thomas Schultz and John Savage.

Mt. Lebanon Man Kills Shark in Surf With Revolver Shots

Paul B. Evers, of 320 Questend avenue, Mt. Lebanon, has returned home from Ocean City, Md., with two rows of needle-like shark's teeth, mementoes of a killing he made last Friday with a target revolver.

Evers, standing waist deep in surf, fired three shots at close range into a shark eight and a half feet long and weighing 400 pounds as it swept by him. One shot struck the great fish in the spine, paralyzing it. With an iron hook he battled breakers and finally succeeded in bringing it to shore.

The kill ended a three days' hunt by Evers for sharks that followed fishermen's boats to shore for cast-off fish. His son, Junior, and several other spectators witnessed the shark's capture.

Chamber Puts Fifth Ave. Widening Up to Council

The Pittsburgh Chamber of Commerce today was to notify city Council of action taken at the chamber's board meeting yesterday recommending that the city widen Fifth avenue between Bigelow boulevard and Dithridge street a distance of 1,500 feet. This, the chamber pointed out, would be an initial step toward widening Fifth avenue from downtown to Point Breeze.

The directors took action for a movement to secure the introduction and passage by Council of ordinances which would make Fifth avenue a six-lane street. The proposed start in Oakland at the civic center could be made at a cost of less than $100,000, it was pointed out.

Three years ago the chamber provided for a study of the proposed widening and recommended enlarging to a six-lane route by setting back the street line from Robinson street eastward to Penn avenue.

The chamber yesterday also passed resolutions commending President Hoover for creating a commission to study plans for practical unemployment relief and for appointing Frank R. Phillips, Pittsburgh, to this commission. President Thomas A. Dunn, of the chamber, was chairman of the meeting.

BRIAND PLEDGES ARMS CUT AID

GENEVA Sept. 11 (AP)—Foreign Minister Aristide Briand denouncing the crime of war, promised the League assembly today France's strongest support for the success of the disarmament conference but said that the problem of security remains a question mark which the nations must face.

M. Briand denied that France desires postponement of the arms conference scheduled for Geneva next February. A formal resolution in favor of an armament holiday was presented to the assembly today by five of the smaller nations of Europe, Holland, Switzerland, Denmark, Norway and Sweden.

CANNING DRIVE FUNDS ASKED

With canning operations now in full swing, a plea was being made today by the Surplus for the Needy Committee for contributions of cash.

Contributions for light, heat and transportation of cans for preserving were sought by Attorney Harry I. Miller, chairman of the committee, and the Rev. Dr. Alexander Gibson, a member.

A special appeal was also issued today for jars, jar tops and jar rings.

Intent on diverting all available surplus foodstuffs to the relief of needy families this winter, the local chapter of the American Red Cross yesterday took action toward volunteer preserving of surplus fruits and vegetables in a score of communities.

3 HURT IN FIRE IN MT. LEBANON

Three firemen were slightly injured in an early morning fire at 684 Florida avenue, Mt. Lebanon.

Two families fled from the three-story frame building. Firemen estimated damage as between $2,000 and $3,000. The injured are Assistant Fire Chief William Geary, 21, of 1070 Washington road; Roy Moore, 30, of 605 Audubon street, Sunset Hills, and J. W. Potts, Jr., 23, of 28 Academy avenue.

W. G. Brown, Jr., 23, his wife, Mrs. Rose Brown, 21, and his brother, George, 12, were asleep on the third floor when the fire started. W. G. Brown, Sr., his wife, and his daughter, Betty, 20, a week out of the hospital, fled from the lower floors.

MURDER LAID TO DRUG RING

NEW YORK, Sept. 11—(INS.)—Murder, swift and dramatic today was injected into the federal government's investigation of the $20,000,000 alien smuggling ring.

Authorities said they were convinced Salvatore Maranzano, slashed and shot by three assassins in a ninth floor office late Thursday, was the victim of the ring. Immigration regulations and related papers were found in the dead man's office, with the names and addresses of hundreds of persons scattered throughout the United States.

Police believed Maranzano was connected with a Chicago group of alien smugglers. Many arrests have already been made in the smuggling ring case and indictments are expected next week.

FLANNERY ASKS U. S. BOARD

...ness from the effects of the ... ence with the normal relationship of supply and demand.

Among the opinions expressed on the Flannery plan were the following:

A. C. Robinson, president Peoples-Pittsburgh Trust Company:

"Suspension or revision of the anti-trust laws would greatly help business to get out of its present difficulties. Any arrangement which would permit companies to discontinue selling below cost would be a stabilizing factor. Such a step would get rid of unnecessary competition. I am not sufficiently familiar with the details of Mr. Flannery's plan for an emergency board to express an opinion of it at this time."

DANGEROUS PRECEDENT

Edgar J. Kaufmann, president Kaufmann Department Stores, Inc.:

"The proposal is uneconomic and would set a dangerous precedent which we might never be able to throw aside. Prices should be allowed to reach their natural levels under the influence of supply and demand. What might seem a good thing for an emergency might be harmful under normal conditions. The public does not suffer from low prices. It benefits. It is up to the manufacturers and distributors to readjust their costs. It sounds fine to stabilize prices of basic materials, but it has proved to be dangerous for the entire business structure in actual practice."

E. T. Weir, president National Steel Corporation:

"Personally I am inclined to favor free and open competition. While this is only an emergency measure it would tend to create a feeling on the part of the general public that things are much worse than they are. We are going to get out of our difficulties without taking such steps. Each company should clean its own house and solve its own problems."

Rothenberg Home Intruder Fined $10

S. E. 'KIDNAPED' BOYS WITH MOTHER

Charles Herman, 6, and his brother, Jack, 5, today were with their mother, Mrs. Jane Thompson Crowe, with the aid of a private detective, kidnaped them yesterday afternoon from their classroom in Holy Rosary Parochial School.

Shortly after the boys' father, Charles Herman, of 7353 Kelly street, had informed East End police of the incident, P. E. "Happy" Moran, a private detective, notified police that he and Mrs. Crowe, Herman's divorced wife, had taken them from the school. Moran said Mrs. Crowe would surrender the children if the husband produces a court order awarding him the custody of the two.

Moran declared that Herman and two other men had taken his sons from the home of Mrs. Crowe and Charles McLean, of Canonsburg, last January 4, with whom they were staying when the divorce was granted.

Mrs. Crowe acted, it was said, on advice of her counsel, who declared that since no one has been granted legal custody of the two boys, they belonged to whichever parent possessed them.

HELD IN THREAT AGAINST LIFE

Declaring her father had killed her husband and that now her brother-in-law threatens her life, Mrs. Catherine Blazina, 41, of the Montana avenue, Braddock Township, today appeared in Criminal Court in a variety of threat charge against the latter, Michael Podrack, 40, of 28 Station street, Rankin.

Podrack was held under $1,000 bond by Judge James H. Gray. Podrack denied the charge.

Mrs. Blazina testified the family difficulties started when her husband, Lawrence, and herself purchased at a sheriff's sale the home of her father, Nick Berkowski, Braddock Township, two years ago. The father is being held in the County Jail awaiting committee action in the killing of the husband, August 21, near Hasgan Station.

Held for Court Under New Gun Act

Charged with violating the firearms act, Patrick Duffy, 38, of 3613 Butler street, was held for court by Magistrate T. D. Jones in Morals Court today. He was alleged to have threatened to shoot Anna Horton, 16, last night in her home after he climbed through a window when she locked the door.

Dry Agents Halt East End Distillery

The establishment of a moonshine whisky distillery in a house in Columbia avenue, East Liberty, was interrupted early this morning by prohibition agents. While on duty in that district they witnessed a 150-gallon still being unloaded from a truck and carried into the house. As the agents followed, the two men carrying the still escaped through a back door.

FATHER SUED FOR $500 GIFT

Seeking to recover from his father, Attorney J. Benjamin Alpern, 1353 Shady avenue a birthday gift of $500 from his maternal grandfather, Louis Ruttenberg, 5504 Raleigh street, a suit was filed in Common Pleas Court by Alpern's son, Edwin, a minor. Mrs. Sadie R. Alpern, estranged from her husband since February last and living with her father, filed the suit in behalf of her son.

According to the suit, Ruttenberg gave his grandson $500 for a birthday gift July 20, 1926, and Alpern took the money, saying he would hold it for his son. At a hearing in Domestic Relations Court, Alpern admitted he no longer held the $500 in trust, the suit charged, accusing him of converting it to his own use.

Claiming she was about to alight from a street car and was paying her fare, carrying her baby in her arms, when a sudden start of the car threw her to the floor, Mrs. Margaret Griffin, of Homewood, filed suit against the Pittsburgh Railways Company in Common Pleas Court, asking $30,000 damages for injuries. The mishap occurred at Hamilton and Murtland avenues June 11 last, the suit stated.

Time Registers Its Dates Visibly on Women of All Walks, Says Fay King

By FAY KING

When women first began to forsake the fireside and flock out into the world to seek careers we used to hear a good deal of talk which seemed to indicate that it was only in marriage, "domestic drudgery," and raising children that "aged" women so.

But it is my observation that no matter where a woman is placed in life the calendar of time registers its dates quite visibly.

The rich childless woman with her endless beauty treatments and expensive grooming loses that bloom of youth just as soon as the mother of a family.

The office girls and movie stars, interior decorators and authoresses, tennis stars and showgirls—all move on to matronly middle.

Nobody stalls old Pop Time.

Harry Approves of Marion's Attendance at Brixton Party

Lillian was not the only one who was watching her husband as she wished to determine his reaction to her assertion that she needed some advice about Marion. From under my half-closed eyelids I also was watching him curiously.

What's up now," he asked with apparent carelessness. "Is Ronald coming in to ask my blessing? I think I'll be simply swell in a heavy father act."

"No, it isn't that bad yet," Lillian said, "although goodness knows it wouldn't surprise me to have Ronald spring anything at any time. I know you'll be surprised to learn that the Brixtons are giving another house party."

"Say not so," he urged. "What's the number of this one this season? The thirty-fifth?"

"Distinctly worth doing at their age," her husband commented.

"Or any other," Lillian supplemented. "Of course, Marion's wild to go. What do you think about it? Is it safe to let her go up there?"

"I hate to admit it," her husband said slowly, "for the Lord knows I do not particularly cotton to the older Brixtons—the youngsters are all right; they do not make them any better—but the Brixton home is probably the safest place in the world for Marion just now, that is if either Brixton or Owen are home."

"They both are," Lillian nodded. "But I don't understand your point of view if, as we all believe, Brixton and Owen are the men behind the attempt to get hold of Marion's lock box. I should think it would be highly unsafe for her to go to any place where she would be in their power."

Mr. Underwood walked over to his wife and gravely patted her on the head. "The old coffee mill isn't making so many revolutions to the second as usual," he told her, "else you would realize that those two birds wouldn't dare let anything happen to her; wouldn't dare even to let her get frightened or suspect anything while she was at their home."

Yes," Lillian said thoughtfully. "That's true. But what about the Heathen Chinese?"

I think she'll be as safe there as she could possibly be here," returned Marion's stepfather and I wondered if he weren't trying to "bend backward" in this matter of permitting her to visit the Brixtons because of his unguarded speech regarding Marion's association with Carolyn Brixton.

"In the first place," he said, "if I know Marion, she'll not move a single step alone without being escorted by Ronald and half at least of any of the other Yale men around.

"Secondly, we'll send a couple of operatives as near the Brixton place as they can get without their identity being suspected by the members of the household.

"Thirdly—Couldn't you manage it so that Mary could go along with her?"

Mary is also invited," Lillian said quietly.

I gather that Ronald no sooner thought of the party than he bought himself a special delivery stamp," Mr. Underwood said with a chuckle.

Your inference is eminently correct," Lillian said with a wry grin. "Why do you wish Mary to go with her?"

"Because, in the first place," Mr. Underwood replied, "Mary is the keenest 'think tank' of any girl I know and though she's near enough Marion's age to be a mighty good pal for her, she's about a million years older in resourcefulness and ability to cope with emergencies.

"If you tip her off before she goes that Marion needs guarding," he continued, "you can crawl between the sheets every night that she's away with the assurance that the protection patrol is working overtime. But, is it a cinch that Mary is going?"

I doubt it," Lillian answered.

"Why?" the question was like a revolver shot.

"Because, Mary feels that Noel would not like it," Lillian said, and there was something in her voice which told me that the feminist in her rebelled at this undue deference to masculine prejudices of one's fiancee.

"Isn't there anybody who can bring her to reason," Mr. Underwood inquired, "and tell her that it isn't always wise to humor temperamental geniuses in their jealousy?"

"If you will keep watch of the baby, I'll try my luck," I said quickly.

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Unsuspected Infection May Cause Chronic Pains

Recently a great friend of mine consulted with an eminent orthopedic surgeon, concerning a severe backache. He had been having such backaches for the past five years. All sorts of remedies for the relief of the pain had been tried but without success.

Dr. Copeland

This man is very active. In spite of his age he likes to indulge in all sorts of exercises particularly horseback riding. But after such indulgence he would be laid up in bed for two or three days with severe backache.

My friend was amazed when the orthopedic surgeon, after careful examination, told him it would be necessary for him to have his teeth and nasal sinuses X-rayed. He could not understand what his teeth or sinuses had to do with a pain in his back. He was sure there must be something wrong with either the muscles or bones of his back, otherwise there would be no pain.

Infected teeth or sinuses do not always cause pain. But as a result of the infection, poisons are sure to be absorbed by the body. They are distributed throughout the system and their ill effects may be felt anywhere in the body.

My purpose in telling you this story is because many of my readers may have gone through similar experiences and may never have thought of having their teeth and sinuses X-rayed. It is wise certainly if you are a sufferer from backache or other vague pain somewhere in the body and have obtained no relief, to make sure your teeth and sinuses contain no pus. This can only be determined by an X-ray picture.

Should a sinus be infected it is important to receive adequate treatment for this condition. If the teeth are infected and cannot be successfully treated, there should be no hesitancy about their removal. Infected tonsils as well as a diseased gall bladder or appendix may cause the same trouble as infected teeth or sinuses.

In order that health may be maintained it is important that every possible infection in the body be given attention. Its removal may require an operation but usually it can be handled in some simple manner.

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Correct Addressing

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. I am to become a mother very soon and I would like to know how to address the cards I will send? Is it proper to send them addressed to Mr. and Mrs. and family if there is a family, or just Mr. and Mrs.

2. I have a large family which really doesn't bother with me. Should I let them know? One of my friends says that I should let everyone know, while another friend says I shouldn't, because they might think I am looking for a gift, and that is one thing I wouldn't want them to think as I really wouldn't want anything from them.

READER

1. We should never use the phrase Mr. and Mrs. and family, when we address an envelope. Address the envelopes of your announcement cards to Mr. and Mrs.

2. I believe that one of the dullest things that a person can say is that an invitation to this or that event, or an announcement of this or that event shouldn't be sent because if we do send it we indicate that we wish to have a present sent. Nothing can be more narrow-minded and more ridiculous. If we are the kind of people who are continually looking for presents to commemorate all kinds of occasions, then we probably will look for presents for any special invitation or announcement sent. And if we aren't, then we don't look for presents. And that's all there is to it. But I am sure that the people who make this comment about the present-expectation are ALWAYS the ones who are looking for presents, hoping for presents . . . and they take the first opportunity of making this accusation against their friends. Announcements are announcements, and they are sent to the ones to whom we wish to send them.

Telephone Etiquette

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

When speaking over the telephone and one wishes to ask the identity of the other person, which form is correct—"Who is this" or "Who is that?" A. K.

Either of these questions almost inevitably seems cuff and ungracious, and it will seem easier, I think, if you will say, "Who is this speaking, please?" or "May I ask who this is speaking, please?"

The Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

New coiffures show the ears. But that doesn't mean anything because if ears are not pretty, they should be curtained with hirsute jambrequins. A beautiful ear is as rare as a beautiful elbow. Ears show age; the tissues in front of them taking on the first wrinkles, usually. If rouge is applied to cheeks and chin, ear lobes should not be overlooked. If ears are in the public eye, they are entitled to their quota of power. Otherwise they seem not to be long.

A hidden-away pain is easier to endure than an affliction, like acne, that is plain to the eye of the beholder. Women and girls who suffer from blackheads and pimples should seek the help of a reliable medical man who specializes in diseases of the skin. Beauty shops are not qualified to deal with these cases, and practically all of them refuse their services, advising the cash customer to see a physician.

Powder boxes, perfume bottles, compacts and all the other parking arrangements in which cosmetics are stowed away, have reached a state of artistic perfection. No need of tucking them out of sight; they serve as ornaments in any boudoir.

HAM STEAK DINNER—One slice ham, ¾-inch thick; 1 cup fruit juice, 4 small cored red apples, baked, 4 parboiled green peppers, 2 cups mashed potatoes, ¼ cup milk, 2 tablespoons butter, 2 eggs.

Score fat around ham. Broil for 10 minutes without turning, basting several times with fruit juice. Then remove to heated plank or oven-glass baking platter, broiled side down. Add milk, butter and eggs to mashed potatoes. Beat thoroughly. Season by taste and with pastry bag or spoon full peppers. Arrange around ham with apples. Return to the oven to heat through and brown ham and potatoes. Garnish with parsley; serves six.

MIXED GRILL EN BROCHETTE—One-half to ¾ pound lamb or veal, 4 to 6 mushroom caps, 2 to 4 small white onions, 4 to 6 slices bacon, 1 to 2 parboiled potatoes.

Buy meat cut ½-inch thick and cut into 2-inch squares (lamb or veal steaks have the least waste for this type of dish). Peel mushroom caps and onions. Slice potatoes in ½-inch thick slices, roll up each slice of bacon. Arrange meat and vegetables on skewers and broil or bake 10 to 20 minutes, basting with fat or melted butter once or twice. Serve on skewers. Serves four.

APPLE UPSIDE-DOWN CAKE—One-quarter cup butter or other fat, ½ cup sugar, 1 egg, 1 teaspoon vanilla, 1½ cups sifted soft wheat flour, 2 teaspoons baking powder, ¼ teaspoon salt, ½ cup milk, 2 to 4 firm apples, 2 teaspoons cinnamon mixed with ¼ cup sugar.

Cream the fat add the sugar, well-beaten egg and vanilla. Sift the dry ingredients together and add alternately with the milk to the first mixture. Spread a thick coating of fat on the bottom and sides of a square or oblong baking dish or a very heavy pan. Pare, quarter and slice the apples thin; spread in a single overlapping layer on the bottom of the baking dish, sprinkle with a mixture of cinnamon and sugar, and add another layer of apples and the remaining cinnamon and sugar.

CHEESE BAKING POWDER BISCUITS—Two cups flour, 4 teaspoons baking powder, ¼ teaspoon salt, 2 tablespoons butter, ¾ cup milk, ½ cup grated cheese.

Sift together the flour, baking powder and salt. Add the butter, mixing it in with a fork. Add cheese and mix lightly. Add the milk, just enough to hold the mixture together. Roll or pat out with hands on floured board to about ½-inch thickness. Cut with small biscuit cutter. Bake on greased pan in oven of electric range at 475 degrees F. for 12 to 15 minutes, until biscuits are golden brown.

MAPLE SPONGE—Soak 2 level tablespoons of gelatine in 1½ cups of cold water about 5 minutes. Put 2 cups of brown or maple sugar and ½ cup of hot water in a saucepan, bring to a boiling point and let boil 10 minutes. Pour the hot syrup gradually on the soaked gelatine. Cool and when nearly set, add the whites of 2 eggs beaten until stiff and 1 cup chopped nut meats. Turn into a wet mold and chill. Unmold and serve with a custard made from the yolks of eggs, sugar, salt and milk. Flavor as you like.

LEMON CREAM PIE (Graham Cracker Crust)—Prepare the crust by mixing 2 cups of graham cracker crumbs with ½ cup sugar. Reserve ¼ cup of this mixture. Add ½ cup melted butter to the remainder. Mix well and press into a small, well-buttered pie pan. Bake 10 minutes in a moderately hot oven. Filling: 1½ cups sugar, 2 cups boiling water, 5 tablespoons flour, 2 tablespoons cornstarch, 4 eggs, grated rind 1 lemon, 4 tablespoons lemon juice, 2 teaspoons butter. Mix cornstarch, flour and sugar and add boiling water, stirring constantly. Stir until mixture boils and cook for two minutes in double boiler. Add butter, egg yolks and rind and juice of lemon. Cool and pour into graham cracker crust and cover with meringue, sprinkle with the reserved crumbs. Bake until delicately brown.

GRAPE JELLY—Four cups (2 lbs.) juice, 7½ cups (3¼ lbs.) sugar, ½ bottle (½ cup) fruit pectin.

Stem about 3 pounds fully ripe grapes and crush thoroughly. Add ½ cup water, bring to a boil, cover and simmer 10 minutes. Place fruit in jelly cloth or bag and squeeze out juice.

Measure sugar and juice into large saucepan and mix. Bring to a boil over hottest fire and at once add fruit pectin, stirring constantly. Then bring to a full rolling boil and boil hard ½ minute. Remove from fire, skim, pour quickly. Paraffin hot jelly at once. Makes about 11 eight-ounce glasses.

GRAPE JAM—Four and one-half cups (2¼ lbs.) prepared fruit, 7 cups (3 lbs.) sugar, ½ bottle (½ cup) fruit pectin.

Slip skins from about 3 pounds fully ripe grapes. Simmer pulp, covered, five minutes. Remove seeds by sieving. Chop or grind skins and add to pulp. Add ½ cup water and, if desired, grated rind of one orange. Stir until mixture boils. Simmer, covered, 30 minutes. (Wild grapes, Malagas and other tight-skinned grapes may be stemmed, crushed whole, simmered with ½ cup of water 30 minutes, sieved, and then measured. With tight-skinned grapes add juice of 1 lemon to water. Use 4 cups prepared fruit.)

Measure sugar and prepared fruit into large kettle, mix well, and bring to a full rolling boil over hottest fire. Stir constantly before and while boiling. Boil hard one minute. Remove from fire and stir in fruit pectin. Pour quickly. Paraffin hot jam at once. Makes about 11 eight-ounce glasses.

TOMATO-OLIVE SAUCE—Two tablespoons chopped green pepper, 1 tablespoon butter, 1 cup tomatoes or tomato puree, 1 tablespoon cornstarch, ½ teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon sugar, ¼ cup chopped olives.

Cook the peppers in the butter for 5 minutes. Add the tomatoes and seasons and continue cooking for a few more minutes. Make a paste of the cornstarch with a little water and add to the sauce. Cook until slightly thickened, stirring. Add olives last.

CELERY SAUCE—Three-quarters cup diced celery, 2 tablespoons butter, 1 cup milk, 2 tablespoons flour, ½ teaspoon salt, 1 teaspoon chopped pimento.

Brown the celery in the butter. Mix the flour to a paste with a little of the milk. Add the remainder of the milk to the celery and when hot add the flour paste and seasonings. Add pimento last.

ROLLED FILET OF BASS—Buy filet of bass, squeeze over them the juice of half a lemon. Put slices of onion between and put in the refrigerator until ready to cook. Roll the filets, skewer into shape, cover with strips of fat salt pork and put into the oven. Baste with the fat in the baking dish. Bake 15 minutes for small filets, from 20 to 25 minutes if large. Make a sauce of the fat in the pan by adding 2 tablespoons of flour to the same amount of fat, ¼ teaspoon each of salt and pepper, cook, add a cup of fish or other meat broth. Add 2 tablespoons capers or finely chopped cucumber pickle. Serve with the fish.

POTATO CAKES—Prepare 2 cups of mashed or riced potatoes. Maybe left-over potatoes. Add 2 tablespoons grated cheese, ¼ cup of cracker crumbs, 1 beaten egg mixed with 2 tablespoons milk. Add a tablespoon melted butter. Form into cakes and place on a well-oiled baking sheet. Sprinkle with grated cheese, dot with butter and a dash of paprika. Place in the oven to brown.

NEW VERSION OF THE EUGENIE HAT

Paris Bureau, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph

PARIS, Sept. 11.—The first winter fashions shown in Paris do not appear to be as fussy as we were wont to believe they would be. They are feminine, to be sure, and there are wasp waists and balloon sleeves featured occasionally. However, the late Victorian influence is being toned down rather than played up. This is not true in the millinery world. The Eugenie hat seems to be having quite a vogue and even version of it is seen. It is still worn [illegible] was to one side since it really must be tilted to be at all chic or becoming.

THE LITTLE MODEL illustrated today was sketched at Deauville. It is fashioned in a stunning combination of navy and white felt. The double upright brims taper into a point at the front and are flat across the back of the head. The top of the crown and the under edges of the brim are of white felt. Two small feathers in navy and white rise from the point at the front.

* * *

AGNES IS SHOWING the amusing "tam" sketched here. Black chenille, closely woven, makes the soft tam-o'-shanter part which is poised rakishly over one eye and worn very much atilt. It cannot slip or blow off because of the tan bands of orange velvet ribbon which tie across the opposite side of the head. Besides being utilitarian, these bands are gaily decorative.

PROBE OF POOR BOARD DELAYED

A legal battle to determine whether investigation of the Allegheny County Poor Board is to go forward immediately or be postponed pending final adjudication, will be fought in the office of Judge Thomas J. Baldridge, of Superior Court, Hollidaysburg, next Monday.

Judge Baldridge, on petition of Attorney Thomas F. Garrahan, of counsel for the Poor Board, granted a rule on K. William Schuchman, instigator of the probe, to show cause why a supersedeas should not be granted in connection with appointment of three visitors by Judge James H. Gray to conduct the inquiry.

Judge Gray refused to grant a supersedeas. If the Superior Court grants it, the visitors will not function unless and until Schuchman wins in the higher court.

Pittsburgh Girl, 20, Saved From River

STEUBENVILLE, O., Sept. 11.—Miss Dorothy Green, 20, of Pittsburgh, was rescued from the Ohio River at United States Dam No. 10 here last night by Capt. Joseph Green, lockmaster. The girl attempted to end her life because she was tired of living, she told police, who have her lodged in the city jail for her protection.

Capt. Green saw the woman jump, swam to her rescue, and brought her to shore after a struggle. Pittsburgh police have been asked to locate relatives.

Raisins Contain Substances Important to Health

Dr. Copeland urges serving this fruit more frequently and particularly recommends it for children and adults who burn up a good deal of energy.

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.,
Formerly Health Commissioner, New York City.
United States Senator from New York.

If you are familiar with the Bible, you know it contains many references to raisins. This is not astonishing because they are one of the oldest known foods.

This food item is extremely popular because of its flavor, as well as its nutritious elements. It is no longer considered a luxury, as it was in ancient times, or when it was carried to England from Spain.

The raisin is grown in this country, particularly on the Pacific coast. It is one of the large crops of the Mediterranean region and is raised in Australia. Its growth requires a sunny, rainless climate. For this reason California is the greatest raisin-producing country in the world.

This industry has developed tremendously within the past 20 years. This can be attributed to the increasing knowledge of the health building substances found in the fruit. In addition to the vitamins, the food is an excellent source of iron and other important minerals.

They contain from 1 to 1½ per cent of mineral salts. These salts are chiefly of the alkaline type, and on this account the fruit has value in overcoming acidity.

The iron and other contents of raisins are believed to act as a tonic to the body.

Another feature in their value is that they possess bulk. They help to prevent chronic disorders dependent on constipation.

Raisins contain 70 per cent of sugar in a form which is easily digested. The sugar contributes to the pleasing taste.

This makes it a good food for children and all other active persons who are constantly burning up energy. Sugar is an excellent source of energy.

Raisins can be eaten raw or used in salads, dressings and in sauces. They make a tempting dish when used with sweet potatoes or bread, cake or pudding.

They are often used in cereals to tempt the appetite of the child. When served in this way they should be substituted for sugar.

All in all, the raisin is a well worthwhile fruit. A frequent comment of mine that I wonder it is not served more often.

pan. Tilt the pan so the entire surface is covered with the fat. When the fat begins to sizzle, pour in the egg mixture. The edges of the omelet will cook more quickly than the center, so as soon as the edges are set, lift them up gently with a spatula. Reduce the heat and cook until the underneath is delicately browned, and the top is moist but not liquid. Loosen the entire surface to be sure that the omelet has not stuck in any spot. Then, holding the frying pan in your left hand, tilt it and fold the omelet in an oval, using the spatula in the right hand. Transfer to a hot platter and serve at once.

BRAISED CARROTS—Six medium-sized carrots, 2 tablespoonfuls butter, 1 cupful stock or boiling water, ½ teaspoonful salt.

Wash and scrape the carrots, cut them in quarters lengthwise, and let them stand in boiling water until the water cools. Remove and place them in a frying-pan with the butter, melted. Cook them gently until well-browned, turning them often. Then add the stock and salt, and place them in a 400-degree F. oven for half an hour. When tender and well done, serve on a hot platter with the gravy over them. Serve 6.

FROZEN FRUIT SALAD—One orange, 1 banana, ¾ cup white grapes or white cherries, 2 slices pineapple, 1 cup fruit salad dressing, ½ cup whipping cream, 1 Maraschino cherry.

Free the orange from all skin and rind. Dice all the fruit and place in refrigerator to chill. Whip cream and combine with the salad dressing, add the fruits and pour into tray of the refrigerator. When frozen cut in cubes. Serve on a crisp lettuce leaf.

NATIONWIDE DIVERSIFICATION WITH 7%

An investment which participates in the industry of the entire nation offers far greater security than an investment which is entirely dependent upon the continued prosperity of any one locality and, likewise, an investment which participates in a great number of business activities offers far greater security than an investment which is dependent upon but one line of business.

An investment in Hearst Consolidated Publications, Inc., 7% Class A Shares is safeguarded by wide geographical diversification because the great publications of the Hearst Consolidated group are entrenched in America's leading and most progressive cities. Thus, adverse conditions peculiar to any one section of the country do not appreciably disturb these nationwide enterprises.

Combined with their geographical diversification, these shares have widely diversified sources of income because their great advertising revenues flow from every conceivable line of business. Thus, adverse conditions in any one industry cannot seriously affect the corporate income.

Something to Crow About!

The American Weekly advertising revenue and linage for the first six months of 1931 was the greatest for any six months' period in its history. The month of July was the greatest July in volume of advertising linage and revenue, and the July 12 issue was the greatest individual issue in volume of advertising linage and revenue which The American Weekly has ever published.

The experienced investor will recognize in these shares a highly satisfactory diversification, safeguarding the investor's principal and dividends. This desirable feature is emphasized by the sustained earnings of these properties, through this period of extreme business depression, of three times the dividend requirement.

ROBBIE MAY MANAGE BUCS

Sport Comment

Hubbell Jinx Revived. Pitt's Quarter Problem.

SOUTHPAW BEATS BUCS 12 OUT OF 15

IF THEY HAD been confronted only by the old Giant jinx which haunted the Pirates might have been able to keep up their winning drive in the first game of the farewell series with the New Yorkers last when Carl Hubbell stepped on the rubber for the visitors he made it a day for hoodoo and the Bucs didn't have a chance. It was quite in line with previous performances that the men of McGraw knocked off the Rovers for the twenty-first time in their last 28 Forbes Field meetings, stopping the rush of the Pittsburgh club at eight straight.

Carl Hubbell

It there is one team the Pirates can't beat often on their own grounds it is the Giants, and if there is one pitcher they can't beat anywhere except on rare occasions, that hurler is Hubbell. They did manage to get a decision over the big left-hander in New York on August 12, Remy Kremer defeating him, 6 to 4, but the hope that that meant the end of Carl's long period of mastery was dispelled yesterday. Evidently the old Hubbell hoodoo is very much back on the job.

THIS MEANS THAT [illegible] pitcher who has caused [illegible] the National League. That [illegible] three years for the Pirates were Hubbell. They won their first [illegible] but from that time on [illegible] them no fewer than [illegible]

That beat the strings of 16 and nine straight which Red Lucas and Dazzy Vance respectively ran up against Pittsburgh before the Corsairs turned on them. And now Hubbell has started again. Yesterday's win was his twelfth in 15 games against the locals since he broke into the league. He lost two and won one in 1928, won four in 1929, four in 1930 and won three and lost one this year.

IT WAS AGAINST [illegible] the last [illegible] game [illegible] held them [illegible]

Showing how a pitcher must be attuned [illegible] club and hardly ever able to beat another, Hubbell has been unsuccessful against Brooklyn as he has been successful against Pittsburgh. He has never beaten the Robins more than once in a season and in his four years in the league he has won only four games from the Flatbush ballers while losing to them 15 times.

IN YESTERDAY'S GAME Hubbell ran his strikeout string for the season up to 150. He leads the National League pitchers in this department. Bill Hallahan pulled up to a tie with Dazzy Vance for second place with 138. The only other National League hurlers who have reached the 100 mark in whiffs are Charley Root, Pat Malone, Paul Derringer, Ed Brandt, Bill Walker and Ray Benge. Lefty Grove is out in front in the American League with 158, his closest rival being his teammate, George Earnshaw, who has fanned 140.

Bobby Hogan

WITH RALPH DAUGHERTY [illegible] a time a quarterback possibility [illegible] assigned to the center position where he will have to beat out Joe Tormey to keep the job. Jock Sutherland, [illegible] Pitt coach must choose among three men almost totally without experience for the post.

Not one of the trio has had as much as 15 minutes of varsity experience. Indeed, Bobby Hogan has yet to play his first game on the varsity as the Meadville lad is only a sophomore. In ability the three are about equal but Hogan, 178 pounds, has the jump on the others in weight, a factor which will count for a lot when it comes to blocking, one of the chief duties of a Panther quarterback.

HOGAN ALSO IS "the best kicker on the team and is the equal of Zola Alpert in passing ability." Rocco Cutri of Erie, the third candidate has enough heft but his kicking and passing are not yet up to varsity standards. He handles the team well, however, and is a fair defensive player.

Alpert a Pittsburgher who so far has handled the second team while the two others have alternated with the varsity and third teams, is a good passer, a fair punter and an excellent safety man. But as the team already has an experienced safety man in Halfback Paul Reider, a quarter who can back up the line will be in greater favor with the coaching staff.

THERE ARE TIMES when a decision in a ring fight is more convincing than a knockout, and last night's lightweight championship battle in New York was one of the occasions. Jack (Kid) Berg, challenger, had asserted that it was only through a lucky punch that Tony Canzoneri had stopped him in their previous title meeting, and that ever so long a route as 15 rounds Tony would be unable to keep up a winning pace. In this the Kid had found many believers. But Canzoneri went the route in fine style and retained his crown by winning the decision, demonstrating that he is far from being the mere three or four-round performer that Berg tried to make him out.

BEATING SUCH A perpetual motion machine and a marvel of stamina as Berg over a long distance is an achievement that stamps Canzoneri as being pretty much a-top in his class. If Berg can't outpoint him it is hard to figure any other lightweight as having a chance.

Tony has proved himself a real champion in ability, but as he proved himself one from another angle by consenting to defend his honors as soon when the average modern title-holder stalls around and sidesteps challengers for many months.

SPORT INTEREST IS stimulated and fans are [illegible] when outstanding figures in athletics run [illegible] office. A number aspire to office in the present campaign. One of them, E. A. (Bill) Knoche, candidate for township commissioner from the First Ward of Mt. Lebanon.

Knoche has achieved distinction in several sports particularly in tennis in which he shone brilliantly before the war. He was the leading player of the Northwest ranking No. 1 in that territory for several seasons and among the first three for 15 years. He was University of Michigan champion in 1915, Minnesota state champion in 1916 and competed in several national championship tournaments.

E. A. Knoche

AT 40, KNOCHE still is a top notcher. He is No. 1 player on the team of the Mt. Lebanon Tennis Club and has defeated at least once every ranking player in the Pittsburgh district except John O'Loughlin. Knoche was a youthful baseball star when he resided in St. Paul and was signed by the St. Paul American Association club when he was 17, but he gave up a professional diamond career at the wish of his parents. While at Michigan he played ball with George Sisler. He was a hockey player of note, played on the all-star St. Paul club, and was on the St. Paul team that appeared at Duquesne Garden 22 years ago. In bowling he scores 185 to 195 consistently with the big pins. Knoche has resided with his wife and three sons at 250 Arden Drive, Mt. Lebanon, for five years, having come here as the representative of national insurance adjusters. He was admitted to practice law in the District of Columbia.

FIFTH AVENUE, SOUTH LACK VETERANS

By JULIUS LEVIN

[illegible] depleted by graduation, the [illegible] Fifth Avenue football coaches have undertaken difficult tasks in developing winning elevens for the fall campaign. Very few, if any, have escaped the ravages of Old Man Commencement and as a result all of the coaches must confine their activities to reconstruction work.

Fifth Avenue High School with [illegible] championship team since [illegible] led the stack uptown eleven against Washington High in the W. P. I. A. L. title mere than a decade ago only to finish a poor fourth, is up [illegible] faces another bad season, unless Coach Chester E. Briggs performs a miracle.

THREE VETS BACK

Only three lettermen are back from last year's team and as this year's squad does not exceed 25 candidates prospects for a winning eleven are four too bright. As has been the case in past seasons P. H. Avenue will be handicapped by the lack of weight and capable reserve material.

Emil Calato, brother of Carmen Calato, who starred in basketball and football at Fifth Ave., Joe Hall and Jules Alpert, Skippy Rick, Tex Lee, Cutler, Steele of [illegible] Ben Lee, Cutler, Steele of [illegible] Ben Lee, Cutler, Steele of [illegible] Ben

DUKES WORK HARD FOR OPENER NEXT WEEK

TECH, PANTHERS GIVEN TOUGH GRID DRILLS

Head Coach Elmer Layden, of Duquesne University, will talk to his Dukes long and earnestly today about the approaching game with Geneva College, which will be just one week off at the time of the lecture. The Night Rider mentor is still a bit undecided about the personnel of his first and second teams, all of which does not brighten the outlook for the season opener.

Both morning and afternoon practice sessions are scheduled for today and tomorrow, while Sunday afternoon practice is also on the books. Layden is taking no chances on his men not knowing their duties since the majority of them lack experience, something which did not bother him last season.

Capt. Mike Ferrare has likewise assumed a worried look as the Geneva game draws near. Mike is looking forward to a victory in which the Dukes will redeem their upset of 7 to 0 last year at Beaver Falls.

With nothing startling in the way of an attack, aerial or ball-carrying and no stars to carry out any such plans he may have evolved, Head Coach Layden will continue with a program of hard work, and plenty of it. Fundamental football will be the Dukes' game against the Covenanters.

ARMENTROUT SHINES

Several things were apparent as Carnegie Tech's football squad held one of the shortest, but certainly the most vicious scrimmage sessions of training camp in the bowl yesterday morning.

One is that Capt. Murray Armentrout if he is fortunate enough to miss injuries, is going to be one of the outstanding runners of the American gridiron during the coming season. Pitted against as tough opposition as he will have to face in some games the big Tartan leader was almost unstoppable as he battled his way through the middle, off the tackles or around the ends.

A new-found cleverness in the open field made him doubly dangerous yesterday, as he twisted and squirmed to evade tacklers.

Keeping step with him was George Kavel, another veteran of last year, and the two of them worked havoc with a line composed of Stauffer and Forsman at tackles, Jones and Burzio at guards, O'Toole at center and Ostrosky and Potts at ends—anything but soft opposition.

Armentrout's club had Heinzer and Bevevino in the backfield, with him and Kavel. Ducanis at center, Fletcher and Croft at tackles and Lewis and Croissant at the ends.

Don Fletcher, veteran tackle, is not to be easily counted out of the tackle battle, despite the fine showings of Croft, Forsman and several of the others.

PITT IN SCRIMMAGE

CAMP HAMILTON, Windber, Pa., Sept. 11.—Still showing room for much improvement, the Pitt Panthers will be sent through another scrimmage today as Coach Jock Sutherland begins to bear down.

Today's sessions will be as long as yesterday's, when the Panthers were sent through two long practices. Only Eddie Hirshberg, Rip Collins, and Jim MacMurdo were doing things right with any degree of consistency yesterday. Johnny Merideth, sophomore tackle, probably will go back to the second club, and his place will be taken by Jess Quatse, veteran.

Bobby Hogan continues to look like the best bet at quarterback. He and his rivals, Zola Alpert and Rocco Cutri, as well as Warren Heller, were taken in hand by Eddie Baker yesterday and given a long kicking drill.

BUCS MAY SIGN ROBBIE

streak yesterday after it had crested at eight victories. The Giant lefthander made our able-bodied performers look weak at the barrier as he held them to four hits and won, 6 to 1.

The Giants shelled Remy Kremer off the hill in jigtime. McGraw's hitters won the contest at the outset by scoring five runs. Osborn, Wood and Spencer followed Kremer to the mound.

A southpaw duel was in prospect for the second clash of the Pirates and Giants this afternoon. Larry French will pitch for Pittsburgh and either Clarence Mitchell or Jim Mooney for the visitors. Carl Hubbell worked out of turn in facing the Buccos yesterday and there was a chance the enemy would work the same strategy with Mooney, who pitched Tuesday.

Tolan's record of 9.5 seconds for the 100-yard dash was set at Evanston, Ill., on May 25, 1929.

ARMY STRONG, TAD'S VIEW

By TAD JONES

Member, All-America Board of Football.

In the strictly eastern sector, it appears to me that there will be two elevens which, barring injuries and many other things that may hamper proper development will be unusually strong and exceedingly dangerous to all opponents. They are Army and Dartmouth.

Last year, the Army eleven was particularly well balanced both as to forwards and backs. It was equally well developed in both offensive and defensive tactics. Upon it were several under classmen of proved ability who, with the additional experience of last season, will be of greater value than a year ago. The coaching staff, too, with Maj. Sasse in charge, will have an opportunity to do a great deal of polishing up of the system of play inaugurated last year. Army should be in for a great season.

LETDOWN AT FORDHAM

Dartmouth also begins work with the satisfaction of knowing that its 1930 eleven was the best since the new attack was devised. It was somewhat lacking in polish and at times shy of finesse, but it possessed great power and much of the power still remains. Here again it is safe to say that the experience gained last year will be of great help in developing the finer points of play this year, particularly in the case of the younger players.

It is possible that there may be a slight letdown at both Fordham and Colgate. These two teams turned in very impressive 1930 records, but are badly hit by graduation and neither could boast unusually strong reserves. At Syracuse, Vic Hanson, in the second year of his regime, is confronted by many problems. It has seemed to me that in recent years Syracuse teams have lacked proper balance. There has been a definite weakness in the forward line when the backfield was of excellent caliber and a very decided weakness of backs when the line was particularly strong. In my opinion, Syracuse is facing a very difficult year.

CORNELL IMPROVED

Cornell should present a much improved eleven in spite of the difficulties under which Cornell elevens must work. Difficult courses of study, short practice periods, and, to say the least, a limited amount of material, make the development of a football team at Cornell anything but an easy task.

KNOCKOUT BLOW BREAKS JAW OF SAYLOR

TONIGHT'S FIGHTS

By HARRY KECK
Sports Editor

That's what Young Saylor has to look back upon today as a result of his windup battle with Tiger Joe Randall, Negro puncher, of Elizabeth, at Hickey Park, Millvale, last night.

The bout was scheduled for eight rounds, but was over after 1 minute 35 seconds of the third frame. It was one-sided, with Randall much too strong and fast and too hard a hitter for his opponent, who was making his first start after a year's absence from the ring.

BLOW BREAKS JAW

A hard right to the jaw while he was on the ropes hurt Saylor in the opening round and he went down heavily from a left hook to the jaw in the second, but spurned a count and boxed well until the end of the round.

Randall opened the third round with a rush that swept Saylor before him and started him down with another left hook and finished the job with a right, the veteran falling along the ropes near his own corner. The left fractured the jaw on the right side and Dr. M. R. Goldman, the commission physician, had to care for the boxer in the dressing room before permitting him to leave the arena.

The boxer was taken to Montefiore Hospital, where X-ray photographs today also revealed a slight fracture on the right side of the jaw. It was said he would be permitted to return home in a couple of days. It is doubtful if he will do any more boxing.

Saylor weighed 147 pounds and Randall 148½. A small crowd witnessed the show.

Bruno Sala, of Donora, 170 outscored Buddy McArthur, of McKeesport, in the semi-final, a close slugging bee, but the judges disagreed, Jock Simco voting for a draw as against Frank Hogan's count for Sala, and Referee Red Robinson's slip gave the bout to McArthur, who was badly punished about the face.

BAXTER STOPS ANDRUCCI

Charley Baxter, of the North Side, 128¼, recently knocked out by Frankie Bojarski in the same ring, came back to stop Andy Andrucci, of the East End, 132, after 1 minute 20 seconds of the seventh round. Referee Robinson called a halt with Andrucci helpless after being floored for nine with a right to the jaw and then trying futilely to weather a follow-up attack. Up to the time of the knockout, Andrucci had won every round except the fourth, in which he was hit low and hurt. He kept crowding Baxter and preventing him from using his right and appeared to be an easy winner until he was clipped.

Between Rounds

Angelo Meyers plans to reopen the Monongahela Temple for boxing bouts on Friday night, September 25. There will be eight-two more shows at the Meyers Bowl in North Braddock, this season, one next Wednesday night, featuring Tiger Joe West and Paul Diffone, and the other one the following Monday.

Andy Martin, of Boston, an old favorite here, has been signed to box Frankie Bojarski, of Erie, in the main bout at Hickey Park, Millvale, next Thursday night.

Frenchy Foye, of Clarksburg, W. Va., who has boxed Willie Davies and Frenchy Belanger, among others, is training for a return to the ring following a layoff. He is under the management of Johnny Sheldon, of Clarksburg.

BRITON TAKES COUNT OF NINE TWICE

NEW YORK, Sept. 11.—(AP.)—Tony Canzoneri, brilliant champion of the lightweights, flayed Jackie (Kid) Berg into defeat again last night and once and for all hammered all the title aspirations out of the British challenger.

For 15 rounds, with only a break here and there as the grinning Italian chose to be merciful, Tony battered the thin-faced Englishman around the ring in the National League ball yard, while 17,000 of the faithful cheered, groaned and sometimes hooted.

Twice Berg was knocked down for counts of nine, the second time by a left hook to the body that was palpably low, and a half dozen times he reeled, bleeding and groggy, scarcely able to keep his feet under the punishment the flashing champion dealt him.

DROPPED IN FIRST ROUND

Berg lacking in the early rounds much of the dash and incessant punching ability he displayed in his rise to the position of a title challenger, was nailed under the gun by Canzoneri's whistling right hand, and he went down for a count of nine from a smash to the chin before the first round was half over.

For a few seconds it seemed that the Englishman would not go as far as he did in Chicago when Canzoneri knocked him out in two rounds, but Jackie rose and finished the round without running into further trouble.

The second time Berg was on the floor in the eighth round, the blow that dropped him would have cost Canzoneri his title on a foul if the duel had been fought before the New York State Athletic Commission outlawed low blows.

LOW BLOW IS STRUCK

A left hook that landed deep in foul territory dropped Jackie groaning, but there was nothing the referee, silver-haired Patsy Haley, could do but count nine over him.

Berg came up without trouble, but this time Tony lashed him about the ring under a volley of vicious body blows, and while the crowd roared its disapproval, Jackie stumbled through the bombardment to the bell.

Aside from these two rounds, the highlights of the evening Canzoneri fought the battle of a master, battering Berg ceaselessly in all except three rounds, where he tried to out-slug the game but weakened Englishman at close quarters. Here Berg, a piston-shooting dynamo at close range managed to outmaul the champion and win the fifth, sixth and tenth rounds. Despite the knockdown he suffered, Berg was credited with the eighth round because of the low blow that floored him. The fourteenth round was even.

The Associated Press score card gave Canzoneri an edge in 10 rounds, with four for Berg and one even. Berg had about a three-pound pull in the weights, scaling 134½ to 131¼, for the champion.

Wilson Says He's 'Goat,' Leaves For Home

CHICAGO, Sept. 11.—Hack Wilson, shorn of his batting laurels and burdened with troubles, left today for his home at Martinsburg, W. Va., to hunt and fish and await news of his transfer from the Chicago Cubs to some other baseball club—major or minor.

Still insisting that the higher-ups on the Cubs made him the goat of the unfortunate affair at Cincinnati last Saturday night, when Pat Malone, Chicago pitcher, slugged two newspaper men, Wilson, however, refuses to blame anyone but himself for his prodigious batting slump.

"I'm a long way from through," said Wilson, "and I still have four or five more years of major league baseball in me. I'll prove it, too, regardless of where the Cubs send me."

METHODISTS WORK

MEADVILLE, Pa., Sept. 11.—(AP.)—Thirty men, most of them veterans reported yesterday at the initial practice session of the Allegheny College football squad. The candidates are in charge of Assistant Coach Chalky Lepeman, in the absence of Head Coach Crum, who is in Washington, D. C., taking bar examinations. Crum will return Monday.

J. D. CHAPMAN HOLDS LEAD AT RYE

RYE, N. Y., Sept. 11.—A low gross mark of 80, posted by Noah Pomeroy, of the Fox Hills Golf Club, Staten Island, just as darkness was displacing a torrid sun which had made playing conditions an extreme hardship all day, led the second half of the field which set out in quest of the United States senior golf title yesterday. A total of 130 teed off.

However the two-round total of 159, recorded by John D. Chapman, of the Greenwich Country Club, Wednesday, stood up well against the assault. Except for Pomeroy, who must card at least a 79 today to tie, Chapman will be the 1931 champion, replacing Dr. George T. Gregg, of Oakmont.

The United States team successfully defended the Duke of Devonshire Trophy by defeating a Canadian squad, 26½ to 18½.

Declares Rent Cutting Would Be Calamity

By B. C. FORBES

RENTS—THERE is no name for that subject I have discovered.

Letters constantly come to this office, asking why, while everything else has declined, rents have not.

When I pointed out that the General Motors Company had voluntarily reduced rentals in its Detroit building, I thought it would be hailed by many as cheerful news.

B. C. Forbes

But the president of the National Association of Building Owners and Managers, C. F. Palmer, Atlanta, protests that lowering of rents below present rates would be something of a calamity. And he presents his reasons.

OTHER COMMENTS received relate to various notes. Examples:

John T. Blair, whose firm is numbered among the largest landowners in Oklahoma, writes in part:

"Rents have been in a gradual decline for ten years in living quarters, while other commodities and particularly stocks have advanced. Had real estate investments gone up in proportion of stocks in the last ten years and deflated in the same proportion as stocks, there would not be a solvent institution in the United States today, not excepting the Federal Reserve, life insurance companies, banks and wholesale and retail establishments.

"Life insurance companies today have loaned upon real estate $20,000,000,000, so one can readily see what it means that something in the country has not soared like a rocket in two years to fall like a comet in the third.

"The fact is this: Rents have declined in all the territory we are familiar with approximately 30 per cent on residences in the past three years and approximately 15 per cent on apartments, and a 15 per cent reduction in apartment rent when the landlord furnished water, light, gas etc., represents approximately 35 per cent of the landlord's net income from the property—this in face of taxes rising and interest on first mortgages remaining at the old figure of 6 and 7."

J. PRINCE WEBSTER, a tenant of the Healey Building, Atlanta, writes:

"To show how women are measuring up in this period of depression as a competitor of the man executive, I want to advise that as a tenant in this building I received in June a personal letter from the owner (a widow named Healey) advising that because of general business conditions, she, as landlord, was voluntarily reducing rentals 10 per cent, effective at once. The Healey Building is not only one of the largest office buildings in Atlanta (16 stories), but it is considered one of the best equipped and managed."

Mr. Palmer remarks:

"Probably you will be surprised to know your recent article about the rent reduction in the General Motors Building, Detroit, may do real harm to the skyscrapers of America, one of the nation's five greatest industries, unless you promptly correct certain impressions it gave. This reduction was not taken from profits but was an actual increase in loss.

"Office building rents cannot be reduced to meet the depression because:

"1—There is now the greatest vacancy in history—17.27 per cent.

"2—Even in the most prosperous times there is only a very small margin of profit—less than 5 per cent.

"3—A decrease in rents will not increase occupancy. Consequently the way of the merchant or manufacturer who lowers his price, increases his volume and thus cuts cost of production, is not open to office buildings.

"4—Costs cannot be lowered because over 65 per cent are fixed and beyond the control of the building owner and manager. These include taxes (27 per cent—probably the greatest burden on any business of the nation), insurance, depreciation, energy for power and light, etc. The remaining 35 per cent consists largely of wages to cleaners, elevator operators, etc., whose pay cannot be reduced without causing real hardship."

Mr. Palmer adds:

"I have recently had long, personal conferences with Secretary of Commerce Lamont and his assistant, Dr. Klein, and both agree that it is as much in the public interest for office buildings to maintain adequate rates as it is for the railroads to do so.

"Over $400,000,000 of real estate securities are in default in Chicago alone. It was this condition in the mortgage field which caused the recent conferences between President Hoover and four of the nation's leading bankers."

THAT YOU SEE gives another side of this vastly important rent problem.

Keystone Club Refinancing Plan Announced

By GEORGE H. SNYDER

PLANS FOR THE FINANCIAL reorganization of the Keystone Athletic Club, which have met with the approval of bond and note holders, were announced by John A. Beattie, president of John A. Beattie & Co., investment banking house, at a meeting of the members last night.

As a part of the program, a drive to increase the membership was launched in order to place the club on an improved operating basis.

The plan will relieve the club of the necessity of making any interest or sinking fund payments during the year ended May 31, 1932. This moratorium period will permit the club to build up its working capital position.

In the four years from June 1, 1932, to May 31, 1936, the club will not be required to make any sinking fund payments on its first or second mortgage bonds or serial notes. During this time only half the interest charges for the period will have to be paid.

Maturities Extended

NEW FIRST AND SECOND mortgage bonds will be issued to present holders to refund the old issues in addition to the principal and interest in default and the deferred interest over the five-year period.

The new first mortgage bonds are to mature June 1, 1952, 10 years beyond the date of the present bonds. The new second mortgage bonds will mature on the same date, which is 13½ years beyond the existing maturity time.

The sinking fund on the new first mortgage bonds will start June 1, 1937, and will reduce the outstanding amount of bonds to $1,000,000 at maturity. No fixed sinking fund has been placed on the second mortgage bonds. A contingent sinking fund will be based on earnings and initiation fees. In meeting both sinking funds the club may deposit bonds at par, permitting it to take advantage of tenders below par.

Note Payments Revised

OTHER CREDITORS WHO HOLD serial notes, amounting to $404,747 with unpaid interest, have agreed to accept new notes maturing in 1952 in place of existing notes maturing in 1935. A portion of the contingent sinking fund will be applied to retire these notes by maturity.

At present the club has a total funded indebtedness of $2,401,647 represented by the two bond issues, the serial notes and interest in default and accrued. After giving effect to the refunding of these obligations, the deferred interest payments and the waiving of $43,597 in indebtedness by creditors, the club will have a new funded debt of $2,804,000.

In summarizing the plan Mr. Beattie declared that the club's obligations of the five-year period for interest and sinking fund will be cut from $1,551,991 to $336,480, or a reduction of $1,215,511. He pointed out that interest to be paid on deferred interest for the period would amount to $61,936, but, after deducting the amount waived by creditors of $43,597, the total cost of the moratorium and refinancing will be only $18,339, in addition to legal fees and the cost of preparing new securities.

To make the plan workable, the members were asked at the meeting to secure a dues paying membership of 2,500 with minimum annual dues of $100, and a net income, after local taxes and insurance, but before depreciation and federal income taxes, of not less than $100,000 for the 12 months ending June 30, 1932.

The Beattie plan was unanimously adopted at the meeting.

SLUMP SHOWS DEFICIENCY IN MANAGEMENT

Failure to Provide for Steady Work Emphasized; Government Can Help

By MERRYLE S. RUKEYSER

Universal Service

NEW YORK, Sept. 11.—The industrial committee of the New England Council is building up sentiment for the idea that "management and not government is the source from which will come the most effective measures for stabilizing employment."

Unquestionably the depression has emphasized that business management has fallen down in providing continuity of employment. There is much to be done in organizing for the long term future.

Mr. Rukeyser

But meantime there is the immediate pressing short-term problem of providing jobs for millions of jobless. With mouths unfed this problem cannot wait for a reorganization of business methods. In the emergency government, through its control of public works can help bridge the emergency in co-operation with private industry. The great need is to attack the depression on all fronts, and not save any one's theoretical face.

In a report on planning and control of public works, issued before the panic, a committee appointed by the President's conference on unemployment stressed the use of expanded and retarded public works as a stabilizing factor. The chairman of the committee was Arch W. Shaw and the members included Renick W. Dunlap, Eugene Meyer, Adolph C. Miller, Lewis E. Pierson, John J. Raskob, Daniel Willard, Clarence M. Woolley and Owen D. Young.

Stating the philosophy of governmental intervention in the business cycle through public works, the committee in a joint statement issued early in 1929 said:

"There are great public works to be built, there is money to do it, and in this country, where future projects of permanent public improvements are so fixed and well defined, it is unnecessary to resort to makeshifts for additional work.

GUARD TAXPAYER

"Never have programs of poor relief or charity colored, to any appreciable extent, the American policy toward public works in relation to unemployment and advocates of long range planning favor active prosecution of projects which are economically desirable at the most desirable time. From the standpoint of the taxpayers who provide the funds and from that of labor which may be employed upon the work, non-economic reasons for public construction have not been favored.

"Experience in recent months seems to show that even in the face of present legal requirements much can be done where a determined effort is made. But more might be done in the future if the problem were more completely explored with the double purpose of advancing both the financial mobility of states and municipalities and the safeguards and security of the tax-paying citizens."

LOANS DECLINE $41,000,000

WASHINGTON, Sept. 11.—Loans on stocks and bonds to brokers and dealers by reporting Federal Reserve member banks in New York City decreased $41,000,000 during the week ended September 9, to $1,325,000,000. This compares with $1,366,000,000 in the preceding week and the record high of $6,804,000,000 on October 2, 1929.

Farm Board Wheat Sales Show Gain

WASHINGTON, Sept. 11.—Chairman Stone of the Federal Farm Board states that the board has sold nearly two months' allotment of stabilization wheat. This would amount to about 10,000,000 bushels and is in addition to special trades, such as the exchange with Brazil for coffee and the sale to China on credit.

Department Store Business Higher

WASHINGTON, Sept. 11.—Slight increase in retail sales, as reflected by the business of department stores, was reported for August by the Federal Reserve Board today, although the gain was less than is usual for the season. The increase, however, was somewhat encouraging in view of declines in recent months.

Favor Retention Of All Employes

NEW YORK, Sept. 11.—Directors of the Rubber Manufacturers Association, Inc., have unanimously adopted a resolution recommending that all rubber manufacturers maintain their present forces, even if a reduction in hours becomes necessary. This policy would apply to all classes of employes.

CHAPTER XXVI.

Fanchon went to her room. She was deathly tired. Everything was over. The next hour or two would see the end. She dismissed Emma, who was waiting. "Please get me out of this costume, Emma," she asked, "and then you can go to bed. I'll take care of Mrs. Carstairs. I know you're tired," she said.

She got off the costume and slipped on a negligee. When the elderly maid had departed, murmuring her thanks, Fanchon took off the little wrap of satin and lace and put on a plain tweed dress, changing her shoes and stockings as well. Over the dress she slipped on a heavy satin robe tailored, and buttoned it close to her throat. She went back into the living room, switched on the lights, went through to the pantry and presently arranged a coffee table in the living room with decanters, highball glasses, ice and Scotch whisky. She put milk on the electric stove in the pantry to heat. Then she sat down and waited. There was no sound from Tony.

She had not long to wait before Collin and Mrs. Carstairs came in. Fanchon heard the elevator stop and opened the door herself.

"My dear," exclaimed Jennie softly, "why aren't you in bed?"

"My headache's better," said Fanchon. "Here, Aunt Jennie, let me take your wrap." She laid it, a priceless affair of chinchilla, over a chair. "I let James and Emma go to bed," she went on, "they were half dead. I couldn't sleep so found a book and waited. I'm going to help you out of your magnificence," she went on, and I've mixed a drink for Collin and a very light one for me and heated your milk for you. I thought we might have a party," she begged.

JEWELS REMOVED

Through Collin's mind and that of his mother the same thought flashed. She doesn't want to have anything said tonight.

Mrs. Carstairs went into her room and Fanchon helped her take off the lovely costume and the jewelry. She put the jewels into a drawer for safety until morning, and laid, with hands that shook a little, the rope of pearls, the emeralds and diamonds, stripped from neck and wrist, from hands and ears into the big jewel case and shut the drawer upon them. From the terrace outside the living room there had come no sound.

When Mrs. Carstairs lifted the tiara from her head with a sigh of relief. "Barbaric things! It weighs a ton," she said, and handing it to Fanchon, put on a lounging robe, after which the two women went into the living room and joined Collin, who, still in his flamboyant costume, was walking about restlessly.

They had their "nightcaps." Fanchon, her very small drink. Collin his mannered one. Mrs. Carstairs her milk. If they were watched from the terrace none knew it. Only Fanchon suspected. And the powders that Tony had given her lay still in their papers in the pocket of her robe.

COLLIN IMPATIENT

Collin said, looking at Fanchon:

"Mother, I want to talk to you for a minute, if I may. Evelyn knows what I have to say."

Oh," said Fanchon, "please, not tonight, Collin. Aunt Jennie's so tired and so am I. Tomorrow."

"Very well," he said, stubbornly, as he saw his mother's gesture of agreement; "tomorrow then. But no later than tomorrow."

He went to his room presently. Fanchon went with Mrs. Carstairs to hers, helped her undress, saw her safely into bed and leaned over to kiss her. Her lips shook so that she could barely control them. She said, "Sleep well, darling," and her hand on Mrs. Carstairs was ice cold.

"You are really ill, Evelyn," said Mrs. Carstairs in quick concern, "never mind me. Go to your room at once and try to get some sleep. We will have the doctor in the morning if you're no better."

Fanchon said lightly, "I'll be all right. Too many good times, I guess," and went to her room. There she lay down on the bed without disturbing the covers, and waited. Twenty minutes. Half an hour. An hour and a half. When she thought despairingly as the leaden minutes dragged by, when would Tony tire?

He had tired out on the terrace, hidden securely, looking now and then at the radium dial of his watch. In an hour at the most Fanchon was to make the arranged signal and they were to make their escape together with the jewels. He had not trusted her to do it alone, that was why he had waited to see that nothing would go wrong, or that she would change her mind.

He would wait no longer. He would see for himself. She had given Collin and the older woman the drugged drinks. They would be sleeping soundly. Why had she not come? She had put the jewels loosely in a drawer and left it a little ajar so she could get them easily if she had followed his instructions.

THIEF TRAPPED

He came in from the terrace through the door he had left unlocked and went to the gallery stairs as lightly as a cat. As lightly he turned the knob of Mrs. Carstairs' door and went in.

Mrs. Carstairs did not hear. She was sleeping very soundly, worn out by the evening and her troubled speculations.

Tony went straight to the dresser. He knew where every piece of furniture was in the room, had seen to it on his "tour" of inspection. A drawer was he saw a little open. He thrust in his hand. Damn! Hell! The jewels had been put in a case! Slowly, carefully he began to draw the case out.

Still the woman was drugged and heavily, he need have no particular fear.

Fanchon threw the door open.

"It is Mr. Gilli," she said quite clearly, "he has come back for something he forgot." She held out her hand. In it glittered the revolver she had taken from Collin's study that afternoon. "Ring the bell that leads to Collin's room," she said to Jennie, "and keep your hands above your head, Mr. Cesare Gilli, or rather Mr. Antonio Francesconi," cried Fanchon.

"Yes," nods Knoole. "And now it just fizzles out."

We stand and gaze. The farmhouse, the remnants of the wood, the heights, the trenches on the sky line yonder. It had been a terrible world and life a burden. Now it is over and will stay behind here, when we set out it will drop behind us, step by step, and in an hour be gone as if it had never been. Who can realize it?

There we stand and should laugh and shout for joy, and yet we have now a sick feeling in the pit of our stomachs, as one who swallows a throat swab and would vomit.

None knows what to say. Ludwig Breyer leans wearily against the side of the trench and raises his hand as if there were some man yonder to whom he would wave.

"Yes, that's it, the diegs," says Heel and goes off, looking as if his mother had just died.

"Well, let's go," urges Bethke, but still stands on.

MANY FRIENDS GONE

"Yes, Brandt, Muller, Kat, Hair, Baumer, Bethke."

"Sandkuhl, Meineders, the two Terbruggen, Hugo, Bernard—"

"For heaven's sake, stop, man."

They are many indeed that lie there, though until now we have not thought of it so. Hitherto we have just all remained there together, they in the graves, we in the trenches, divided only by a few handfuls of earth. They were but a little before us, daily we become less and they more, and often we have not known whether we already belonged to them or not. And sometimes, too, the shells would bring them back among us again, crumbling bones tossed up, scraps of uniform, to the noise of the drumfire issuing once more from their buried regiments and returning to the battle. But now we are going back into life and they must stay there.

Ludwig, whose cousin was killed in this sector, blows his nose through his fingers and turns about. Slowly we follow. But we halt yet a few times and look about us. And again we stand still and suddenly we know that all that yonder, that place of terrors, that desolate corner of shell-hole land, has usurped our hearts, yet, damn it, that it should sound such slush! it seems almost as if it had become endeared to us, a dreadful homeland, full of torment, and we simply belonged in it.

We shake our heads, but whether it be the lost years that remain there, or the comrades who lie there, the misery that this earth covers, there is a grief in our bones, enough to make us howl aloud.

And so we march out.

Clever Scheme Boosts Sale Of Unpopular Book

"Nice girl!" he echoed.

"Yes, that's my opinion of her and I'll stick to it," Lang said.

Nice girl? Nice girl? Is that all you can say?" Why look here, Jack, Beatrice Danforth is the sweetest, the most beautiful, the most glorious girl who ever lived, she's wonderful!"

Lang nodded gravely and managed to conceal his desires to chuckle.

"One would think, to hear you talk, Rudy, that you were rather interested in Bee Danforth."

"Interested in her? Rudy exclaimed. "Interested in her? I'm madly in love with her. I can't keep her out of my mind. I don't want to keep her out of my mind. I can't live without her."

"Umm," Jack murmured.

"What? Don't you believe it?"

Evidently you are quite sincere, and from the little I have seen of the girl, she is indeed charming and beautiful. You say that you cannot live without her."

"I do."

"You've been reading again. That line was used in a love story once," Lang remarked, gravely.

LANG DIVORCED

"Aw, stow it, Jack, will you? I don't feel like being kidded. I've written reams about love and romance, but I never knew a thing about it until I met Bee this spring. Honestly, I don't see how I can live without her."

"I know. I felt that way about Inez once."

Lang had been Reno-vated as the columnists put it, some years before. It was the first time Rudy had heard him mention his former wife since the divorce.

"But this is different, Jack, honestly. I'm mad over Bee. I don't see—"

"How you can live without her. Yes, you made that remark once before. I know it well now. But when a chap cannot live without a girl there is always a way out—marriage."

Jack became rather concerned over this.

Rudy nodded.

"Sure. Bee loves me, all right."

"Then it's only a matter of a ring, a couple of dollars for a license, a J.P. spot to the parson and presto, you do not have to try to live without her."

"There's another trifle that you overlooked, Jack. The trifle is a home, a sufficient income—even true love needs money to live on."

"Then hurry and become famous."

"Fame? Listen. Fame is something that now and then happens to come to a man, just as now and then one finds a pearl in an oyster."

NOT SUCCESSFUL

"People have been known to acquire fame by working for it, Rudy."

"What do I do? I pound the old typewriter day in and day out. Do I become famous? No. I do not become famous. I just make a living at writing. And look at you, you get a silly idea about a girl marooned on an island, a plot nine million years old, and you write a story and call it 'Marooned Hearts,' although there was a motion picture of that title some 10 years ago, and the dam thing begins to sell and sell and sell!"

"Both novels that I wrote, labored over, put my heart's blood into, didn't get beyond the twentieth thousand. You found a pearl in your literary oyster and I didn't."

"I could stake you, Rudy—"

"Be yourself, Jack. Would I permit my closest friend, or anyone else, to stake me to the price of a wedding and starting housekeeping? If I cannot earn it myself, then I'll—well—it's plain hell. I want Bee and Bee wants me and there's no chance whatever that we can afford to be married."

"Work. The eternal dripping of water."

"Wears away the hardest stone. Sure I know that, Jack, and I am working. I'm starting a new novel. I'm calling it 'The Great American Fool.' How does that sound?"

"Sounds like a rather long title."

"It is dedicated to the average American husband, who is a fool. He permits the wife to boss him, he slaves and lets her be a bejeweled parasite. Isn't that food stuff for a novel?"

"I don't see any joke."

"That's because you are in love and absolutely goofey, Rudy. Here you are, about to write a novel on the subject of what fools American husbands are, to enable you to earn enough money to become an American husband!"

"I've got to make a lot of money," Rudy muttered, refusing to see anything laughable in the situation.

Jack Lang did feel rather sorry for Rudy. He hoped that the new book might make a big hit, but he was rather doubtful as to Rudy's ability to write the best-seller type.

However, spurred by love and his yearning for Beatrice Danforth, Rudolph Peyster worked arduously at his novel-writing.

Eventually he had it finished.

Jack Lang had been reading it as Rudy progressed. Lang knew that it was never destined to set afire the literary world, yet he couldn't bear to give Rudy his honest opinion.

"It's the best you've done, Rudy," he said, truthfully enough.

Rudy's publisher balked on the manuscript and Rudy became dangerously despondent until Jack took the manuscript to his own publisher and had a long conference with him.

Rudy and Bee were happy once more, because hope springs eternal.

"I am just sure," Bee declared, "that it will make good, dearest, and you'll get the fame you've so long deserved."

Finally the book was off the press. Rudy received only scanty notices from it at the hands of the professional book reviewers. He went down into the slough of despond once more.

The next time Jack Lang returned from the South, which was soon after the book was out, he had a talk with Rudy.

TO QUIT WRITING

"Give it time, plenty of books and plays take a long time in getting to be really popular."

"Oh, yes, after I'm dead, perhaps, but I want my success now. Bee and I are both brokenhearted over this flop."

"I don't believe it has flopped, as yet. Say, I ran over to drag you off to the affair at the Success Club tonight."

Rudy snorted at this.

"Helluva fine type I am, to go to a success club," he growled.

"Come on along, plenty of notables there, men and women who have success in all sorts of professions, stage, literature, art, science, really, Rudy, you can get a great deal of color at one of those affairs, meet all sorts and find plenty of characters for your next novel."

"Next novel? There isn't to be any next novel!—I'm going to sell bonds or do something. I've got to earn money right away."

"You are too impatient. Your book will come along, it will be a best seller, I feel sure of it."

Rudy laughed dismally.

"Your guff might make some people feel better, but I'm hard boiled. I know my novel is a flop."

"Forget it."

"If it wasn't for Bee, if we weren't so eager to be married I wouldn't care a hoot about the flop."

"I'll be over at nine, have your evening togs on. You've got to go to the Success Club blowout with me."

"Ah, there's the actor, Keith York, over there, Rudy. He married old Benson's granddaughter," Jack said.

Jack introduced them to Rudy. But York did not extend his hand. Instead he said, "Author of 'The Great American Fool?' Eh?"

Rudy nodded.

"Sir," said York, in his best stage manner, "I resent it. I resent that novel. It is a base canard. I am proud to work for my beautiful wife, and your book is piffle, nonsense and decidedly unfair. I resent your novel so much that I shall chastise you, the author!"

With that, Keith York slapped Rudy.

"You saps, why didn't you let me sock that ham?" he demanded.

"No scandals, won't do. Come up to my quarters and have a drink. We'll talk it over. Er—this is Mr. Waters."

Mr. Waters did not go up to the Lang quarters. Instead, he departed hastily at the outer door, hailing a taxi. Rudy heard Jack say to Mr. Waters: "Get busy."

TELLS OF PLOT

The papers were full of the affair. For days they published stories and interviews about the slap. The name of Rudolph Peyster, and the name of his latest sensational novel, "The Great American Fool" appeared daily under good headlines. The comic weeklies took it up with verse, jest and cartoon.

The sales of Rudy's book leaped up and up and up. Into a fourth and fifth edition it went and still kept selling with the very top notchers.

"Jack, old man, you were right about the book becoming a best seller," Rudy exclaimed. "Bee and I are to be married next week and take a trip abroad."

"Yes, I was sure the book would be a best seller," Jack confessed, "as soon as I argued Keith York into slapping you and engaging Waters, the live-wire publicity man, to make news of it."

BE A PITTSBURGH BOOSTER
To Your Friends in Other Cities

The Councilmanic Race

Houston, McArdle, Garland and Anderson Offer the Greatest Hope to the Taxpayers.

Tomorrow is the last day on which citizens of Pittsburgh may register for the vitally important primary election of next Tuesday. The polling places will be open from 8 to 11 in the morning and from 5 to 11 in the evening.

Once more state troopers will patrol the city to protect the registrars and citizens from the thugs and gangsters who seek to steal the election.

The state troopers have been summoned because the Registration Commission cannot depend on the city policemen. Pittsburgh's police force has been so debauched under Mayor Kline's administration that it has become utterly unreliable for the enforcement of the election laws or for the protection of the people against racketeers and other criminals affiliated with the Kline machine.

There is but one way for the people to wipe out the disgrace of it, and that is to repudiate Kline and the evil things he stands for by electing to the City Council men who will refuse to do his bidding when it is inimical to the public welfare and who will call him and his department heads to account for their shortcomings.

The taxpayers need independent Councilmen to check Kline's extravagance; they need Councilmen who will stand like adamant against proposals to increase the tax burden, already one of the heaviest borne by any municipal taxpayer in the United States.

Consider these figures: The United States Department of Commerce reports that of 250 cities with population in excess of 30,000 Pittsburgh's per capita tax of $67.27 is exceeded by only eight cities, while the National Municipal Review states that Pittsburgh's tax rate is higher than the tax rates of New York, Chicago, Philadelphia, Detroit, Cleveland, Baltimore, St. Louis, Los Angeles and San Francisco.

An enormous increase in Pittsburgh's municipal expenditures and, consequently, in the tax burden, has occurred during Mayor Kline's administration.

In 1925, the year before Kline became Mayor, and for several years previously the annual municipal expenditures amounted to about $20,000,000. They have been increasing at the rate of $2,000,000 a year during his administration and this year are in excess of $29,000,000.

This startling increase in Pittsburgh's budget under the Kline administration is the more remarkable because during the same period the general cost of living, as shown by the Bureau of Labor Statistics, has steadily declined.

Many thousands of dollars of the people's money have been squandered by the Kline administration by awarding contracts to favored high bidders in violation of the law, a policy which has resulted in the indictment of the Mayor and his former Director of Supplies, Bertram L. Succop.

Many thousand of dollars of the people's money have been squandered to tickle Kline's personal vanity, as, for example, in the purchase of a $75 monogram and custom-built tires for his car, and costly paintings and rugs for his office.

Millions of dollars have been spent in padding the payroll. The year before Kline assumed office the city's expenditures for salaries and wages were $9,143,175; this year they will amount to $12,734,665.

As expenditures have mounted taxes have also mounted. And we have no assurance that they will not continue to mount. The only way that offers any hope of checking the rise is by electing independent Councilmen who will not stand for it.

Unless the budget is severely pruned there is a prospect of a two-mill increase in the tax rate next year, for the city will be without $1,300,000 of revenue that it received this year—the $500,000 disgorged by the American Reduction Company, the $500,000 bank deposit insurance fund which Council appropriated, and the $300,000 paid the city annually under the terms of the traction agreement by the Pittsburgh Railways Company, which has served notice it will be unable to pay it next year.

The tax burden is already more than many of the citizens can bear, as is shown by the thousands of properties advertised for sale for non-payment of taxes.

There is not the slightest likelihood that the Kline administration or the Councilmen subservient to Kline will eliminate extravagance of their own accord. They have, for the most part, dismissed disdainfully all suggestions for economy offered by such bodies as the Real Estate Board and the Building Owners and Managers Association.

One of the Kline Councilmen, Robert J. Alderdice, is up for re-election. He forfeited all right to the consideration of the voters by suddenly switching to the Mayor's camp when he thought it might benefit him politically.

Councilman John M. Phillips, a candidate for another term, is a man whose record prior to his entering Council was such as to justify high hopes of him. He, too, has come under the baleful influence of the Kline administration, and is being supported by the Kline machine.

A recent case in which a little South Side girl was found hopelessly intoxicated led Mrs. Phillips, the Councilman's wife, to remark that there was not a little liquor drinking by children in that section of the city. Here was a splendid opportunity for Councilman Phillips to render the people a service by asking Council to investigate this serious situation and call the police officials responsible for conditions to account. He has failed to do so, and his lack of action is evidently due to fear of the political consequences.

John D. Houston is a candidate who deserves election. Mr. Houston is the businessman who had the courage to tell the truth about the Department of Supplies and thus brought about the indictment of Kline and Succop. He is a man of business experience and ability and knows a great deal about the city's problems.

Councilmen Robert Garland and Charles Anderson have not always militantly fought the people's battles, but they have stood up boldly against the Mayor's machine and are entitled to re-election as a reward.

No candidate for Council has a better record than P. J. McArdle. He is able, fearless and incorruptible, and would be sitting in Council now if he had not been fraudulently "counted out" by election crooks two years ago.

James P. Rooney and William J. Soost deserve nothing. Soost disgusted everybody by his illegal signs on the boulevards. He also showed his contempt for the decencies by using city police to deliver tax receipts. Rooney is another of the Mayor's henchmen. He showed his caliber when, as a member of the Legislature, he tried to rip out the Board of Public Education, so that the administration of the schools might be taken over by the politicians.

Houston, McArdle, Garland and Anderson offer the greatest hope to the taxpayers.

With Help at Hand, He Looks Afar!

(Copyright, 1931.)

Jobs for the jobless would be provided if President Hoover would summon Congress into special session PROMPTLY to pass the legislation needed to float a $5,000,000,000 Prosperity Loan such as proposed by William Randolph Hearst, to be expended in a gigantic program of essential public works.

Sluggish Trade Shows the Need for Prosperity Loan

By MERRYLE STANLEY RUKEYSER

THE backwardness of the indicators of general business conditions in showing the normal seasonal upturn at this time of year emphasizes the urgent need for a constructive program.

Since April, the improvement in the volume of trade accomplished during the first third of the year has been effaced, and the end of the summer period has been characterized by a double bottom.

Buying power all around has been restrained by the distinctly subnormal character of the construction industry.

Private interests are timid and hesitant, each waiting for the other to act.

Cautious capital meantime flows into securities of the very highest grade, especially the obligations of the United States government.

THE federal government recently again demonstrated its superb credit by making a long-term loan at the low coupon rate of 3 per cent.

It is to be regretted that the Treasury is using its credit for the purpose of offsetting budget deficits, rather than for the constructive, job-creating purpose of a widespread program of public works.

As the third winter of subnormal business approaches, it becomes increasingly evident that NO OUTSIDE MAGIC is going to obviate the need for a determined effort on the part of alert business and political leaders to organize for recovery.

TIME is the essence for fruitful remedial activity, and President Hoover should delay no longer in the matter of calling Congress in special session to consider the proposal for a prosperity loan of $5,000,000,000.

Such a huge capital fund could be prudently expended for essential public works, such as improvement of highways, development of power sites, flood control, reforestation, advances for the eliminaiton of grade crossings, and the modernization of public buildings.

The plan is in line with creative thinking by the foremost scientific economists, who look upon public works as a balance wheel of prosperity and depression, urging that they be expended in time of depression and retarded in periods of prosperous trade.

Not thinking in terms of profit, but of service, the government CAN AFFORD TO ACT while private interests vacillate.

By thus breaking the ice, the government would set an example in courage to private interests, which have been piling up constructive projects until a more propitious time.

ASIDE from the social and humane advantages of initiating job-creating activities, the federal government by doing now the projects which it will undertake anyway over a period of years, would practice true economy by taking advantage of prevailing low costs.

The figure, $5,000,000,000, is based on careful thought. It is believed that the various departments of the federal government have in their pigeonholes plans for the spending of such a huge sum.

Such a display of courage by the federal government would stop the current tremendous wastage of the work-power of the 6,000,000 unemployed.

Moreover, it would set in motion a spiral of new tonic influences which would help to end the anomaly of hunger and malnutrition while the markets of the world are glutted with supplies.

THE acute economic maladjustment is a challenge to leadership, which should seek to attack the depression on all fronts by an economically sound plan for restoring balance in the realm of production and distribution.

A do-nothing policy while the storm rages tends to feed the factors making for a vicious circle of depression.

The situation constitutes a challenge to the intelligent and capacity for self-government of the American people.

Those who, in the spirit of Oriental fatalism, want merely to stand by and see what happens are, by acts of omission, pauperizing large sections of the working population.

UNDER the American Constitution, President Hoover, through the capaicty to summon Congress ahead of its normal session, holds the key to the situation.

There is no doubt of his desire to do what is helpful.

It is to be hoped that the Chief Executive will act promptly along lines intended to help lift business from the dead center of continuing depression.

Marry-Go-Round

Purse Strings

The world seems to be full of wealthy women who are willing to exchange real money for a little imitation love and a few life-like kisses. Buying a husband either for spot cash or on the installment plan is the latest fad of the woman with more dollars than sense.

* * *

Fair enough! But why is it that these "bought-and-paid for" husbands so seldom seem willing to EARN the easy money they squander, even when all that is asked of them is a few caresses and a pleasant smile?

Why do such men always rebel sooner or later, and bite the hand that has pawned its diamonds in order to feed them monogrammed cigarets, keep them in silk pajamas and pay their gambling debts?

* * *

When a woman marries a man for his money, she usually makes up her mind to earn it, by giving a life-like imitation of wifely devotion in return. She runs his house, rears his children and strives to do him credit when she presides at his dinner parties.

But the man who marries a woman for her money never seems to figure that he is under the slightest obligation to give her value received. This is not always because he is "that kind of a man"—the "taking" kind—but just because he is a man!

Down in the heart of every he-male—even the wormiest heart—is the aboriginal conviction that he is woman's "superior." And to know that he is the object of her charity irks him beyond endurance.

The more favors she lavishes upon him, the more he hates her. The more tenderly she treats him the more bitterly he resents her kisses as an income tax and her generosity and affection as an insult.

* * *

He is filled with self-contumely—and what spills over is HERS! The only way in which he seems to be able to hold on to the remaining shreds of his pride is to treat her with scorn, neglect or contempt. And that's where the purse-strings tighten!

A man values a motor car or a wife, according to what they have COST him, in money, work, or self-sacrifice! And the kind of wife who pays the bills, makes life one long, sweet song for him, and asks nothing in return, is classed right with the coffee percolator that was bought with cigaret coupons, and the Japanese fan that comes with a pound of tea.

* * *

Women have held men by the heart strings, by the apron strings and even by the shoe strings. But no woman ever held a man by the PURSE STRINGS.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK Sept. 11.—Thoughts while strolling: New taxis featuring free cigarets and peppermint breath lozenges. The Beaux Arts apartments with starters clad as gendarmes. And a concierge on a platform. Sign: "Health Reducing Institute." There's candor. Walter Trumbull.

I always hurry past one of those big gas tanks, fearing it will explode. Japanese-American tailors. Bus placards: "Courtesy Pays Dividends." The only thing that does these days. A bent over lamp post and a shatter of glass. Fannie Hurst thinner than ever.

Nobody can strut like Alexander Woollcott. Or twirl a cane like George M. Cohan. No coloring to my notion is as exquisite as the throat of a pigeon. The whine of wind against skyscrapers—like catguts in a gale. Didn't Burns refer to one of his verses as "a random clink?"

Old Tories of the Sunflower Decade who walk only along Murray Hill. Tree tops turning yellow. Somehow I long for a small town in the fall. And evening bells. Smell of bonfires. And the soft haze of frosty twilight. Wonder how Eddie Cantor happened to think of those white rimmed glasses?

Credit jewelry stores almost all vacant. The Thirty-ninth street tonsor who heralds: "Get Shaven, Shined, Shorn and Shampooed Without Talk." Half the fun is chatting with a barber. There's always a crisp self assurance about expert advertising copy writers. So many women in New York resemble Fannie Brice.

Bolton Mallory, editor of Life, and bride, Nancy Carroll. A girl with a mandolin. I thought they had gone out. Travel bureaus ballyhoo India. Ghandi has proven the best of press agents. And, too, such names as Bombay and Calcutta touch off the imagination.

My favorite weather prophet—a shrinking violet with a distaste for publicity and living in Arizona—sends me his prediction for this winter. He foretells weather by the mottle on a goose-bone, a hand-down from pioneer days. The winter, he says, will be particularly severe from January on.

* * *

A pair of Toledo, O., honeymooners write me of hopping into an open horse-drawn carriage holding forth around the Plaza the other dusk. They told the venerable driver to swing around the park. He sat on his perch immobile until reaching a dim-lit part of the park. Without turning his head, he offered: "There's a good five-minute sparking stretch along here."

* * *

The ancient Jehus seem the last link between New York as I first saw it and as it is today. They are lonely and tired old men from County Cork who try valiantly to carry on because there is nothing left for them to do. "When this fails," one of them told me, "the next stop is the poor house." Next to the Plaza their best stand was on the Thirty-fourth street side of the old Waldorf. I am told, however, traffic regulations will not permit them at the new Waldorf. That is a pity!

* * *

Because the new Waldorf is catercornered from my coop, I find myself in close touch with its various surprises by peeking in every few days. The wrinkle that impressed me greatest is the railroad siding deep in the basement. Here private railroad coaches are shunted from Grand Central and owners may step into waiting elevators and whisk to their apartments without passing through the lobby.

* * *

I wonder if other air castle builders have indulged their dream of pulling up to the home town depot in a private railroad car. I've often thought up a name for mine.

"I heard you were dining at the Pavillon Royale the other night," writes Elsie A. "How does one spot such a distinguished gourmand? I tried and failed."

My wife, peering over my shoulder when she should be finishing her step-scrubbing, suggests looking for a spoon in the coffee cup.

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

Little Mike Vengalli is dead.
He wab playing in the street.
A big car swung around the corner.
There were six men in the car.
As they came to the place where Mike played,
Guns roared,
A man fled.
Five children fell.
One of them was little Mike.
The bullet had gone through him very easily.
For he was only five years old.

WHO KILLED LITTLE MIKE?

Yes, but there was more to it than that—
Much more.
That man pulled the trigger.
But who gave him the chance
To pull that trigger?
How did those six men dare to ride,
Publicly, on such an errand?

What has come to pass that every day,
Men should ride around
In cars like that,
Shooting guns like that,
Killing whatever gets in their way?

Twenty years ago, things like that Didn't happen in America.
We were doing reckless things,
And foolish things,
And bad things,
But we weren't doing things like that.
There were guns then, too,
And people who liked to use guns,
And quick ways of making a getaway.
Yet we weren't doing thinks like that.

WE WEREN'T DOING THINGS LIKE THAT,
BECAUSE WE WERE AFRAID OF THE LAW.

The Law meant something then.
If the Law said a thing,
It did that thing.
It didn't say things
It couldn't do.
It didn't bite off more
Than it could chew.
The Law worked then—
That's why men respected the Law.

For no one respects
A Law which doesn't work.
A Law is only good
As long as you can enforce it.
After that it becomes
A worse menace
A law you can't enforce
Calls the bluff on all authority.
Makes a joke of all decency.
After that, anything can happen.
That is why things like this
Are happening now.

WHY WAS LITTLE MIKE KILLED?

He was killed because someone
Had made a monkey of the Law
Which should have protected him.
Find out who has Made a monkey of the Law,
And you will know
Who killed little Mike.

Who made a monkey of the Law?
Not the man in the car.
He was only an agent.
Not the gangster above him,
He is only an opportunist,
Profiting by a situation
Which somebody else created,
Profiting by the chaos,
Which comes when Law breaks down.
Who created that situation?
Who is responsible for that chaos?
The law breakers?
No—they are only the consequence.
THE LAW MAKERS—
THEY ARE THE CAUSE.
The respectable, righteous citizens,
The stubborn, short-sighted,
Well-meaning but fanatical men
Who created a law
Which says things it can't do.
A law which bites off
More than it can chew—
They made a monkey of the Law.
They made it possible
For thugs to run amuck in cars,
Laughing at Law,
Spraying streets with death.
Those men,
Those good men,
Who wouldn't, personally,
THEY KILLED LITTLE MIKE.

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

Old age is a tragedy if reached before financial preparation has been made for it.

It is softened if there are children who can and are willing to care for an aged parent.

But under the most favorable circumstances it is more or less a tragedy when others must be depended upon for food and shelter.

Being able to pay a stranger for personal service or to have property that may be left to children for their kind offices, mitigates the humiliation.

But it is unwise for parents, no matter how much they are importuned to do so, to turn over their property to their children during the parents' lifetime.

Let it be understood that the property is to pass on to the children when the parents have passed away.

In the majority of cases this will not affect the treatment of aged parents, but far too many heartless offspring are kind and considerate till they can get things in their own hands.

The son or daughter-in-law can do no better act than to care for aged parents, giving them a comfortable and happy home irrespective of property prospects.

Be careful to provide for yourself, if you can, and avoid heart aches.

Text For Today For to me to live is Christ, and to die is gain. But if I live in the flesh, this is the fruit of my labour: yet what I shall choose I wot not. For I am in a strait betwixt two, having a desire to depart, and to be with Christ; which is far better.—Philippians, 1:21, 23.

ISN'T IT SO?

It takes the public six months to discover that a man has quit drinking and six minutes to learn that a man has started drinking again.

Money never buys happiness, but many people are willing to accept substitutes at current rates.

If you have enough money to meet your "reasonable desires" you are rich.

The man who thinks the world owes him a living had better go to work. It is harder to collect a living from the world than it is to work.

The best way to eliminate those annoying noises in the rear end of the car is to leave the back-seat driver at home.

You can never judge the size of a man by the amount of noise he makes.
